Debate In Commons

GENERAL ACCORD REACHED

London, July 27. The long and important speech in which he reviewed the many different aspects of the foreign situation was made by the Foreign Secretary in opening the Commons debate to-day. Mr. Eden began with an account of the recent London Conference by recalling the efforts of the British Government ever since the German reoccupation of Rhineland to restore confidence and to make of the area of difficulty an area of opportunity. It has been in that spirit that the Government in March addressed certain questions to the German Government—questions which were neither acrimonious nor inquisitive, but represented honest endeavour to facilitate progress.

Had they received an early and constructive reply, it would have saved much time. It was in the same spirit, the agenda of the Three Power meeting in London was conceived. He thought they were entitled to say the outcome of the brief meeting in London would show how completely the constructive objective which they had in view was realised. That this result should have been possible was mainly due to the far-sighted statesmanship and generous collaboration shown by the French and Belgian Ministers. The communiqué issued at the end of the meeting said Mr. Eden "shows we now look definitely to the future and do not confine ourselves to the past." The Foreign Secretary emphasised the desire to reach an European settlement were as keenly felt by the French and Belgian Ministers as by the British.

In expressing the hope that the invitations addressed to Germany and Italy would receive favourable answer, Mr. Eden stressed the great amount of preparatory work to be done through diplomatic channels before the Five Power meeting could usefully take place. But though many obstacles yet remained to be surmounted, they had reached the stage when the genuine spirit of collaboration existed among all concerned.

STRAITS CONVENTION

In course of a statement on the new Straits Convention agreed to at Montreux, Mr. Eden said the most important lesson of the Conference was, it had shown that treaty revision by negotiation and agreement in accordance with normal procedure and principles of international relations could lead to a settlement more favourable to all concerned than the method of repudiation of the treaty engagements by unilateral action. The conference had undoubtedly brought about a closer and more cordial understanding between the British and Turkish Governments.

Later in his speech the Foreign Secretary referred to the unilateral declarations, extending assurances given to certain Mediterranean Powers during the period of Economic Sanctions to the period of uncertainty following their termination and said, "happily there are now specific grounds for affirming the position of uncertainty has been brought to an end. About the middle of this month the Italian Government made to Governments of Yugoslavia, Greece, and Turkey spontaneous declarations the substance of which has since been communicated to me in London by the Italian Charge d'Affaires. From this communication it emerges clearly that the Italian Government have themselves given to each of these three Governments the most clear assurances that Italy had never contemplated nor is contemplating any aggressive action against any of them in retaliation for the Sanctions. The Italian representatives in each of the three capitals have also emphasised that Italy considers the sanctions' chapter as being definitely and completely over and looks confidently forward to a new period of mutual co-operation between all nations. I am glad therefore to recognise and declare that in the view of the Government there is now no further need for continuance of unilateral assurances."

THE SPANISH SITUATION

After declaring satisfaction of His Majesty's Government at the progress made in the Treaty discussions with Egypt, the Foreign Secretary turned to the situation in Spain. Sharp and very bitter fighting was still going on there following the sudden and widespread revolt and it was not possible to forecast what its outcome would be. After detailing the measures taken for the safety of British Nationals in the areas of danger Mr. Eden said he had telegraphed to the Spanish Foreign Minister on this matter and he was glad to say the Spanish Government had accepted all points put to them within the limits of their capacity. The local situation in Madrid at the time he had received this message was quiet and the Diplomatic Corps were in communication with the Spanish authorities with regard to the arrangements being made for a convoy to take foreigners from Madrid to Valencia. Whether it had been possible to carry this through he had no information.

OTHER MATTERS

Towards close of his speech the Foreign Secretary dealt in rapid succession with a number of subjects including Danzig, Mandates, raw materials, disarmament and the last point he declined to define the Government's attitude while consultations were still going on. Speaking of the transference of mandated territories, Mr. Eden declared any question of transfer would inevitably raise grave difficulties, moral, political and legal for which His Majesty's Government must frankly say they had been unable to find any solution. His Majesty's Government therefore hoped with so many other international questions still unsolved that there

PLANS ALTERED

KING NOT TO HOLIDAY

London, July 27. It was announced from Buckingham Palace to-day that King has cancelled his arrangements for a holiday on the French Riviera. In the absence of an official statement for a holiday on the French Riviera, newspapers agree in ascribing His Majesty's decision to the consideration for the French authorities at a time when their normal responsibilities are much increased by the provision for refugees from civil conflict across the border in Spain.

It is understood the matter was the subject of conversation between the King and the French President when they met on Sunday in connection with the ceremony at Vimy, and there was reference to the alteration of His Majesty's plans in a telegram he addressed to President Lebrun thanking the latter for his participation in the ceremony. The King said, "though to my great regret I am obliged to modify my plans for the immediate future. I wish to assure you of the pleasure with which I contemplate further visits to your hospitable country."

UNITED KINGDOM DELEGATION

PERSONNEL ANNOUNCED

London, July 27. At the House of Commons question time to-day, the Foreign Secretary announced that the United Kingdom delegation to meet the League assembly are as follows: the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, the Lord Privy Seal, Lord Halifax, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, assisted by the Financial Secretary to Treasury, Mr. W.S. Morrison, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, Mr. G. Shakespeare, the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Lord Cranborne, Sir William Mallin of the Foreign Office, Miss Marjorie Graves, Member of Parliament and Lord Astor.

would in no quarter be a desire at this time to increase further cause of differences between the nations. Mr. Eden emphasised that distinction between questions of transfer and the question of whether arrangements were necessary or desirable for giving all countries freer access to raw materials produced in mandated territories or in the colonies. Government were fully prepared to discuss the latter question at some international conference under the League of Nations and an approach might well be made in their view at the forthcoming assembly meeting.

Twitting the opposition with inconsistencies he alleged in its attitude to the Government's rearmament programme, Mr. Eden said armaments for which they were asking would never be used for purpose inconsistent with the League Covenant or the pact of Paris. They might, if occasion arose, be used in self defence. They might be used in war of aggression. The Minister added it would clearly remain the duty of the Government to seize any opportunity for the limitation of armaments. It was possible the opportunity might come sooner than some people thought for pressure on economies of nations was extremely severe and that might come to be appreciated even in many quarters where it would be ridiculed at the present time. They would not, however in the present troubled state of world aid the course of disarmament by bland refusal to take note of events. They lived in a Europe concluded Mr. Eden suffering from almost total eclipse of freedom of opinion—Europe where there was tendency for extremes to rule—extremes with which no section in that House could feel sympathy. Their liberties which they mean to maintain carried with them responsibilities. Democracies must show unity if they were to survive and hand on to later generations the liberties of which they were proud.

Pres. Roosevelt Assailed

'NOT QUITE RIGHT'

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 9. What Mr. Baldwin has said to put up with is small in comparison with what the ill-disposed in the United States have to say about President Roosevelt. A whole corpus of Roosevelt stories has grown up. The commonest one alleges that the President is "not quite right." Another asserts that "everybody in Washington knows that the whole Roosevelt family is drunk most of the time." A third alleges that Mrs. Roosevelt is planning to succeed her husband in the Presidency until such time as their sons can assume control.

"CONSUMING HATRED" One American writer ascribes the stories to a "consuming personal hatred of President Roosevelt, and to an almost equal degree, of Mrs. Roosevelt," which "permeates the whole upper stratum of American society." He thinks that "in history this hatred may well go down as the major irony of our time."

NEW HOME FOR QUEEN MARY

Marlborough House Re-decorated

London, July 8. Under the supervision of Queen Mary, Marlborough House has now been appointed and re-decorated, and Her Majesty will take up residence in her future London home when she returns from a holiday at Sandringham in the early autumn. Her Majesty will not attend the Buckingham Palace receptions on July 21 and 22, when the Duchess of York is to act as hostess for the King. Her holiday will mark the end of her 25 years' residence at Buckingham Palace.

For the extraordinary fact is that the majority of those who rail against the President have to a large extent had their incomes restored and their bank balances replenished since the low point of March, 1933. Mr. Roosevelt, say the members of his class, has "inspired himself into a position of supreme authority and now proceeds to advise at his friends. There can be no forgiveness for such disloyalty."

Pres. Roosevelt Assailed

'NOT QUITE RIGHT'

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 9.

What Mr. Baldwin has had to put up with is small in comparison with what the ill-disposed in the United States have to say about President Roosevelt. A whole corpus of Roosevelt stories has grown up. The commonest one alleges that the President is "not quite right." Another asserts that "everybody in Washington knows that the whole Roosevelt family is drunk most of the time." A third, alleges that Mrs. Roosevelt is planning to succeed her husband in the Presidency until such time as their sons can assume control.

"CONSUMING HATRED"

One American writer ascribes the stories to a "consuming personal hatred of President Roosevelt, and to an almost equal degree, of Mrs. Roosevelt," which "permeates the whole upper stratum of American society." He thinks that "in history this hatred may well go down as the major irony of our time."

NEW HOME FOR QUEEN MARY

Marlborough House Re-decorated

London, July 8.

Under the supervision of Queen Mary, Marlborough House has now been appointed and re-decorated, and Her Majesty will take up residence in her future London home when she returns from a holiday at Sandringham in the early autumn. Her Majesty will not attend the Buckingham Palace receptions on July 21 and 22, when the Duchess of York is to act as hostess for the King. Her holiday will mark the end of her 25 years' residence at Buckingham Palace.

For the extraordinary fact is that the majority of those who rail against the President have to a large extent had their incomes restored and their bank balances replenished since the low point of March, 1933. Mr. Roosevelt, say the members of his class, has "flattened himself into a position of supreme authority and now proceeds to snipe at his friends. There can be no forgiveness for such disloyalty."

MODERN LIFE INSURANCE

Mr. Eric Mitchell Addresses
The Rotary Club

VERY FINE INVESTMENT

A bright and instructive talk on "Modern Life Insurance" was delivered by Rotarian E. J. R. Mitchell, O. B. E., before members of the Hong Kong Rotary Club at their weekly tiffin held at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden yesterday.

Rotarian Mitchell's address was punctuated with laughter. He told many amusing stories and also described the functions of an insurance agent, different types of policies and annuities and added that modern life insurance was used very largely to protect business interests.

People in Great Britain, remarked the speaker, had in the past few years become very life insurance conscious. Life insurance was a very fine investment, because it was not subject to depreciation or any violent fluctuation of capital.

AGENTS PROPERLY TRAINED

The President (Mr. W. N. Thomas Tam) said: Before I go on to the ordinary business of the meeting I would like to tell members that the meeting next week will be a business meeting—a closed meeting. Members are reminded to turn up in full force because at that meeting some fairly important business will be discussed. One of the items on the agenda will concern our subscriptions for the year. Last year we paid $35 plus $5 for community service. It is recommended by your Directors that the subscription might be reduced to $30 plus the regular $5 for community service. (Applause).

Guests, including several insurance agents, were then introduced by members. They included Mr. M. J. Abbott (Assistant Crown Solicitor), Mr. W. E. Walsh, of the U.S. Immigration Service, San Francisco, Mr. S. P. Rivas, of the U.S. Immigration Service, Honolulu, Messrs. H. R. Sturt, E. R. Childs, G. E. R. Divett, G. Bonhoff, W. Murch, J. P. Whitlam and G. E. Wetton.

Introducing the speaker, Mr. Thomas Tam said that besides Rotarian Mitchell's prowess on the cricket field he was also well-known for his activities in the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps in which he was an efficient officer. (Applause).

THE ADDRESS

Addressing the meeting, Rotarian Mitchell said:—

Mr. President, Fellow Rotarians and guests, before proceeding with this talk on Life Insurance I want to warn you that I have not come here to-day with the idea of doing any business. (Laughter) but rather to give you a glimpse of what modern Life Insurance can do for you, and I can assure you that it will be quite as safe for you to remain seated in your chairs as it is for those of you who are listening in at your radio sets. If my monologue becomes at all monotonous, you can always sleep and the others can switch off.

In the first place, what is Life Insurance, what does the word convey to you? The average man thinks of it as an expense—a sort of unnecessary evil imposed on one, and he buys Life Insurance with some vague idea of protection. He wishes he had not got to do it and he usually does it to get rid of some agent who has been pestering him. (Laughter) Having secured a Policy of about $1,000 on his life, he feels very relieved and happy about it until the next premium falls due, and when another agent comes to see him, he says "I'm already insured," "up to the eyes, old boy" or "you can't stick me for another Policy." Gentlemen, I ask you, how long is that $1,000 going to last for the average family? I the average widow could invest it at say 5.2 per cent. (which I doubt very much) it is only a matter of simple calculation to see that this sum would yield only $52 per week. How would you like to be left with a family to bring up on $52 per week? Unfortunately the average insurance per capita in Great Britain is less than $1,000, therefore you can readily see that the average man is very much under-insured. That such a state of things should exist is due to the fact that Life Insurance agents have been too easily put off in the past. (Laughter) Time and again I have heard the excuse "If you come and see me in January, I will give you a Policy," which rather seems to indicate that the man who is to be insured imagines that he is bestowing some great favour on the agent, and so he would be if he were to make the agent his beneficiary but not otherwise.

COMMISSION BASIS

Perhaps some of you are not aware that an agent is remunerated on the commission basis—he gets no salary at all. If he did, he would sit in the office all day and draw his pay at the end of each month and all the Insurance Companies would have to put up their premiums to cover expenses not accounted for. The commission basis has been found to be the most economical and actuarially the most sound basis of remuneration. A Life Insurance Company cannot afford to pay for no business. Its premiums are based on mortality statistics and the interest rates and expense of writing business, and consequently there can be no other method of remuneration of its agents. The very fact that this is the basis of remuneration has made it very easy for Insurance Managers to take on a poor type of agent, who had probably failed in every other line of business, then send him round with a Rate Book to beg for business. Unfortunately for the public and the business, this state of affairs still exists though in a very much smaller degree than in the past, and to this fact must be attributed the somewhat suspicious attitude of the public towards Insurance Agents.

While on the subject of agents' commissions, I want to make it clear that Life Insurance is not the same as Fire Insurance, where high rates are quoted so that high rebates can be given. A Fire Insurance agent has a salary and can afford to give a return commission to the insured, but if a Life Insurance agent gives away his commission, he is not only robbing himself but helping to rob his competitors as well, and if such a thing as rebating is discovered in Canada or the United States, a man is liable to have his licence cancelled. In Great Britain the English Companies used to rebate. This is poor salesmanship. One should not have to bribe a man to do business with one, especially when the policy is for the insured's benefit, or rather the benefit of his family.

In the past few years some of the leading Companies of the world have been doing a great deal of educating of agents before sending them out to see prospective clients, so much so that in Canada and the United States of America to-day there is a degree known as the C.L.U. (Chartered Life Underwriters) which has to be sat for in examination, and the time appears to be not far distant when the respective Governments will only grant licences to those with C.L.U. degrees. After all, if a doctor, a lawyer, an actuary, a chartered accountant or a priest have to qualify before they can practice, why not a Life Underwriter. A fully qualified Life Insurance agent is just as necessary to the public as a fully qualified doctor. An unqualified man should not be allowed to practice in any profession, particularly Life Insurance, which after all in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred represents a man's only savings.

The best description I think that I have ever heard of Life Insurance is "Money when it is needed most," because it actually provides this at death or retirement and in many cases in times of stress people have had to borrow on their policies to tide them over to better days.

INSURANCE CONSCIOUS

People in Great Britain have in the past few years become very Life Insurance conscious, and some of you may have read a number of recent articles on Life Insurance as an investment. Life Insurance is a very fine investment, because it is not subject to depreciation or any violent fluctuation of capital. It is sound, safe and sure. There are no re-investment worries connected with it, even when the policy matures or becomes a claim, as I shall show you a little later on. In Great Britain to-day there have been numerous articles showing you how the return on a Life Insurance premium can work out at about 6 per cent. This, of course, is too good to be true. If, however, you take into account the saving in income tax and deduct the actual cost of protection from the premium on an ordinary Endowment Policy, it is quite conceivable that the return on the balance of the premium, after making this allowance, will be somewhere in the region of 5 or 6 per cent. If, however, you do not take these conditions into account, the return is somewhere in the neighbourhood of 2 per cent. This, of course, you will see is not much good but it is quite as good as any reputable bank can give to-day, and you have the protection. Some of you may, however, argue that you can get 4 per cent. in "Trust of Insurance" shares and such like, and so you can, but once you start talking about shares you come into the category of fluctuating capital and the fluctuations of to-day are more like an ebb tide than anything else I have seen. That is why interest rates on such types of investment are greater than rates obtainable in a guaranteed type of investment.

THE WHOLE POINT

When I first commenced selling Insurance and went back for my second interview with my prospective client, I was greeted time and again with the reply "I can do better with my money" or "The interest is too low" and this was demonstrated to me by many manipulations on the abacus. Quite true, they could obtain a better rate of interest if they invested it, but if they did not take out a policy they would not save the money or invest it; they would spend it, so why argue about interest rates on a capital of nothing? That is the whole point, Gentlemen, about Life Insurance. It is money saved which would never otherwise be saved, and further if you only got your money back it would be a very much better investment than a good many which a number of my friends have been involved in. (Laughter) particularly on the other side of the Pacific in the past few years. (Laughter) I once had a man walk into my office and ask me to guarantee that he would have £2,000 at age 55. I said "Certainly, if you will guarantee to save this amount of premium until you are age 55 and what is more, if you do not live to that age, I will cancel the remaining instalments and pay the whole lot to anybody you like to name, but why," I asked him. "Do you want this guarantee?" "Because," he said, "I have a friend who planned to retire from this Colony when he was aged 55, and he is already aged 55, but he cannot get out of this place because his shares are worth half of what he gave for them and the dollar is worth only 60 per cent of its value at the time he purchased."

chased the shares, and he cannot even sell them at this figure. "I want £2,000" he said. "So that I can sell my own investments in my own sweet time and not be caught at age 55 in the same way as friend." The modern Life Insurance contract not only provides cash at death but it offers several very valuable options such as Limited Instalments over a certain stated period, for example, for education or the up-bringing of a family. Another option is an income for life to the beneficiary guaranteed for 20 years or as long thereafter as the beneficiary survives, the guaranteed period may be made for any length of time to cover the period of family up-bringing in case the beneficiary does not survive the insured as long as that period. Another option is to leave the money with the Insurance Company on accumulation at a guaranteed minimum rate of interest (usually 3½ per cent) in fact, using the Company as your Banker. There are several combinations of these options which may be utilized. For example, the widow of a man with a £1,000 policy can arrange to have it paid in this manner:—

(a) Immediate cash at death	£ 168.0.0.
(b) £100 per year for 10 years	£1,000.0.0.

Minimum guaranteed total .... £1,168.0.0.

The widow of a man with a £1,600 policy may have:—

(a) Immediate cash at death	£ 179.0.0.
(b) £100 a year for 20 years	£2,000.0.0.

Minimum guaranteed total .... £2,179.0.0.

The widow of a man with a £2,000 policy may have:—

(a) £100 a year for 20 years	£2,000.0.0.
(b) A lump sum payment at the end of 20 years	£1,053.0.0.

Minimum guaranteed total .... £3,053.0.0.

The figures I have quoted are based on the Company allowing 3½ per cent on the money being left with them, instead of a lump sum being paid to the widow, which she may be lucky enough to bank at 1 per cent. Actually the instalments paid out each year are increased by the surplus interest which the Company may declare from year to year. Most Companies are allowing 4 per cent this year. Also, instead of being paid yearly, the instalments may be paid monthly, quarterly or half-yearly. These figures do not take dividends into account, the dividends would naturally increase all the figures shown. Therefore, you will see from the illustrations, given that a £2,000 policy can really yield over £3,000 and would last much longer than if paid out in a lump of £2,000.

COMPANY'S OBLIGATIONS

The conception of modern Life Insurance is that a Company having accepted a risk, should not wash its hands of any further responsibilities after the death of the policy-holder. That is the time, gentlemen, when the Company's power for good can be most exercised and whether the option is selected before a man's death or after, the Company definitely has obligations to protect that man's savings through Life Insurance and make the money last as long as possible for his dependents. This is only a part of the curriculum taught to agents in Life Insurance Schools, and in these days of difficulties in investing money, decreasing interest rates and general uncertainty, the agent who is showing his client what he can do for him through the various options of the policy is giving a real service to that client. The settlement option selected and type of policy depend entirely on the situation of the client, and believe me, gentlemen, there are no two cases which are exactly identical.

Here we come to another very important point, and that is information. If a client would only be more frank with the Insurance Agent, that Agent could help him to solve his problems far easier than if he withholds certain information, which might cause the Agent to sell him the wrong type of policy. We are all naturally very cautious when it comes to discussing money problems, but when you have decided to give an interview to an agent and you feel that you are placing your confidence in him, you can be sure that he has a reputation of giving good advice to live up to, just the same as a lawyer, or a Doctor. Every agent who has been properly trained is taught to put himself in the place of his client on the basis of the information he has received from that client and to do for that client exactly what he would like for himself if he were in a similar position.

A good Insurance Agent who is a fully qualified man has no time to waste on people who try to be clever or on people who send circular letters round to as many Companies as possible. In Life Insurance parlance we call that "shopping."

Over a period of years during which a policy is in force, no one Company can guarantee to give any better terms than any other Company. If one Company charges lower rates, you can be sure that their dividends will be proportionately lower than a Company that charges higher rates; if you are thinking of taking Insurance, you should go to the man whom you like to deal with best and from whose Company you think you will receive the best service. No Insurance Manager or Agent can tell a client exactly what his profits are likely to be either next year or in 1950 any more than any of you can tell what you are likely to make in the same year. They can only give a very rough indication. If you find an agent boasting profits, you can be sure that he is not a good salesman because he is trying to sell you something which you may not be able to get. You can tell a good salesman immediately, by the way in which he tries to put himself in your position and really do something for you, and you can help him to help you by being frank with him.

TYPES OF POLICIES

In modern Life Insurance there are several types of policies which can be fitted to respective needs, for example take an average man with a young family of two or three children and let us assume that this man is ambitious and wishes to have his own home and retire at a reasonable age and we find that he has these needs for Insurance:—

- (1) A small policy to pay a lump sum to his widow to pay off outstanding accounts at death including expenses of his last illness and funeral, because when a man dies, all his creditors such as doctor, lawyer, undertaker, butcher, baker and candlestick-maker, have to have their accounts paid before the poor widow and children can even look at one cent.
- (2) He needs a policy which will give his widow a minimum monthly income for family up-keep, possibly decreasing after the education of the children is completed.
- (3) He needs a policy to pay educational expenses by limited instalments over a certain number of years.
- (4) He needs a policy to pay off the mortgage of the home he wants to own, so that he leaves his widow a home and not a mortgage.
- (5) It is quite conceivable that the minimum monthly income that he has arranged for his widow may not amount to nearly what he and his family are living on to-day, and it is possible to give him a policy which will give his

"COLLEEN"

AT THE ORIENTAL THEATRE

Warner Brothers' smash hit "Colleen" will be shown at the Oriental Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Every Dick Powell film has been a big hit. Consequently when it was announced that Warner Brothers had a new musical, in which were not only Powell and Miss Keeler, but Jack Oakie and Joan Blondell, Hugh Herbert, and Louise Fazenda, together with the stage's greatest dancer, Paul Draper, were to be starred, the success of the picture was assured.

The story is packed with rollicking comedy, romance and a touch of real drama.

Two mammoth and spectacular numbers were created and staged by Bobby Connolly with scores of beautiful chorus girls in each. One takes place on an ocean liner, specially built for the picture and the other in a modiste shop in which is presented a gorgeous fashion show.

The settings are not only unique and unusual, but exceptionally beautiful, displaying new designs of glass and streamline furniture, as well as the latest mode in gowns.

Powell sings two of the songs in his inimitable manner one by himself and one in which Miss Keeler gives a lyrical recitative. The other, a comedy number, sung by Jack Oakie and Joan Blondell is entitled "Boulevardier from the Bronx."

A great Scottish pavilion, sponsored by the Scottish Development Council, and the biggest effort yet made at an exhibition abroad, will be one of the features.

The Scottish pavilion will be a modern building, specially designed by Mr. Basil Spence, of Edinburgh. Impressive in its height, the building will be further enhanced by having before it a formal garden and pond, and visitors walking along the main avenue will see the pavilion and its lights reflected in the water.

In the centre of the building will be a perpetual fountain. The water of which will run into a pool—symbolising Scotland's contribution to the Empire. A 30-foot-high portico to the building has been designed by two young Edinburgh artists, the brothers Carolan.

All districts of Scotland will be represented among the exhibitors, while of particular interest will be a 25-foot model of the Clyde harbour, lent by the Clyde Trust.

"THE 39 STEPS"

"The 39 Steps" showing to-day at the King's Theatre was written by John Buchan as the first of a series of stories told about a certain Canadian—one Richard Hannay, young man who quite accidentally finds himself in a whirlpool of incidents and difficulties through no fault of his own.

The yarn covers in the screen version a row in an East End music hall, an international female spy, a master criminal seeking British air defence plans, a wild pursuit in Scottish glens and highlands, in the mists and under the sprays. We are taken, on exciting train journeys, into lonely Scottish towns, and end a night in a bedroom with our hero and heroine under the oddest and most amusing conditions, handcuffed together, and mixing real love with pretence in the happiest way. We have as a grand finale a crazy show at the Palladium, in which tragedy appears and a novel happy ending. It is all great sport and very speedy.

Robert Donat has had, as a screen star, one of the most meteoric rises to fame. In this he justifies the high hopes entertained from his initial success. The part he plays in this picture is full of opportunities. The story is comprehensively and vividly delivered. He plays opposite that radiant and unmatchable beauty Madeleine Carroll, whose faultless performance is itself invaluable. He meets hardly anybody in the cast who is not in some way gifted, certainly no one lacking in experience. Names like those of Lucie Mannheim, Peggy Ashcroft, Godfrey Tearle, and Frank Cellier will indicate the unusually fine support.

Although a woman spy is murdered near the beginning of this film, and although Robert Donat is hunted by the police for a murder which he did not commit, there is romance, comedy and witty dialogue in this film, making it delightful entertainment.

THE THIN MAN

"The Thin Man," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture which showing to-day at the Star Theatre, is one of the best unusual pictures to come out of Hollywood in many a long day.

A detective mystery, it presents William Powell in the finest and most amusing sleuthing role of his career, ably assisted by charming Myrna Loy as his wife, Nora.

As Nick Charles, a retired detective, Powell goes to New York with his lovable, wealthy wife for the holidays. Trygve ungoes the holidays. There, against his will, he becomes involved in a triple murder mystery which remains a baffling, bewildering problem until the very last few feet of the final reel are unrolled—and the method by which the solution is reached should receive an Academy Award for its originality.

The picture never lags in interest, keeps the audience on the edge of their seats every minute, and furnishes respite from the tension it gives to jaded nerves by a liberal sprinkling of humorous situations and dialogue.

Maureen O'Sullivan does well with her role as Dorothy, the

"COLOUR TO DEVELOP NEW SCREEN ART"

AN INTERVIEW WITH COLUMBIA'S SHORT SUBJECT PRODUCER

A new screen art is being developed through the use of colour in animated cartoons and in short subjects. And this screen art is calling for a new type of craftsman, who must combine a keen sense of the artistic with an appreciation of entertainment values.

This was revealed recently in an interview with Charles Mintz, creator of the "Colour Rhapsodies" and "Barney Google," animated cartoons released by Columbia Pictures Corporation.

"Experts in colour," said Mintz, "now being drilled in the subtle, difficult art of combining colour with the entertaining antics of mythical characters, such as 'Barney Google,' will be the forerunners of a new branch of motion picture production."

"Some studios believe these persons will be absorbed by full-length colour cartoon production, with cartoon pictures running six reels or more in comparison to the present one and two reels."

NEW VISTAS OPEN

"What will probably happen is that with the apparent leap to popularity of natural colour for regular films, these persons now being schooled in colour work will find new vistas of production open to them. With the actual advent of sound in 1928, radio men were drafted from almost every large station to supervise the technical work of making sound films. This happened because sound became a reality, out of a vague hope, almost overnight."

"To-day, the picture industry, with its wather eye cocked to the future, is developing its own artisans, educated in every minute detail of colour production. If natural colour supplants the current black and white shadowed green, these persons will be able to step into the required jobs without any rumbling of the present smooth sailing of picture making."

Mintz, who has been in cartoon production for almost a decade, is a recognized authority on cartoon colour. He has been producing the "Shappy" cartoon series, in black and white, for many years and, with the inception of tints into the cartoon field produced "Colour Rhapsodies" and "Barney Google." Google, the newest of his creations, is meeting with widespread success.

RAMONA RETURNS

IN A TALKIE VERSION

After many delays, partly due to Loretta Young's illness last year, Twentieth Century Fox have started their talkie version of Ramona.

The film is packed with interest, it gives the new "discovery" Don Ameche, his first leading role. It includes Pauline Frederick, famous silent star, among the featured players. It is being made throughout in colour.

And, of course, there is Loretta Young, playing the title role which made Dolores Del Rio famous in the silent version. Loretta, with her wistful charm, seems a perfect choice for the bitter sweet story of the half Indian girl.

Kent Taylor, Jane Darwell, Katherine DeMille and J. Carroll Nash are others in the cast of the picture, which Henry King is directing in Hollywood now.

daughter of the "Thin Man" who is responsible for all the mystery in the story.

An entirely new face in "The Thin Man" is Porter Hall, well known on the Broadway stage for his fine portrayals, but yet unknown in pictures.

Minna Gombell, usually seen in comedy roles, appears in the new picture in a highly emotional part and puts it over in splendid order, while Nat Pendleton at last has become a law-abiding citizen in a police officer's character.

Director W. S. Van Dyke should be commended for the deft manner in which he filmed Daniel Hammett's best-selling novel and several other participants in the cast deserve a pat on the back.

BIG FILM DEAL SAID TO BE NEARLY SETTLED

AMERICAN BID FOR CONTROL OF GAUMONT-BRITISH

London, July 9.

There were strong rumours in London filmland this afternoon that a deal which will result in the £7,000,000 Gaumont-British Picture Corporation coming under American control is on the point of being settled writes a correspondent.

Mr. Joseph M. Schenck, one of the chiefs of 20th Century Pictures, is anxious to acquire the interest of the Ostrer Brothers in Gaumont-British, thus giving the American company control of Britain's greatest film producing, renting and exhibiting concern.

Twentieth Century-Fox already own a half share in the control of the Corporation through their interest in the holding company, Metropolis Bradford Trust. The Ostrers own half, but the British control has been assured by the fact that Lord Lee of Fareham is chairman of Metropolis and Bradford.

WHAT OSTRERS WANT

The terms of incorporation of Gaumont-British insist that the concern shall remain British controlled and London film people are wondering how the American company will overcome this difficulty if they buy the Ostrer shares.

Two million pounds is believed to be the sum the Ostrers are asking for their interest, with the proviso that they shall retain their executive positions in the management of Gaumont-British. This demand is one of the difficulties in reaching an agreement.

Mr. Isidore Ostrer, president of Gaumont-British, and Mr. Schenck are now talking over the deal in Hollywood.

Mr. Mark Ostrer, chairman and managing director of Gaumont-British, who is in London, said to-day that he knew nothing about the deal.

It is said that the American firms of United Artists and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are also involved in the negotiations. If this is so, a deal would result in the amalgamation of some £50,000,000 worth of world film interest.

Gaumont-British have no rival in this country in regard to the amount of film output and the number of cinemas controlled, which is 350.

CHARLEY GRAPEWIN SIGNS CONTRACT

Charley Grapewin, veteran actor, playwright, and novelist, achieved two successes at once when he was given a long-term contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and then received word that his latest novel, "The Woman Who Wouldn't," is to be published in the Liner Library, one of the most important book editions in America.

Grapewin came to M-G-M to play the cantankerous father of Cecilia Parker in "An. Wilderness," which was followed by the role of Cal, the faithful friend of Lionel Barrymore, in "The Voice of Bugle Ann." He is currently playing Paul Muni's father in Irving G. Thalberg's "The Good Earth," which has Luise Rainer as Muni's co-star. Sidney Franklin is directing.

HOLLYWOOD'S BIG THINGS

What Sydney Howard Saw In America

London, July 9.

Here are some of the things that Sydney Howard, the comedian, saw in Hollywood:—

Greta Garbo's big feet, Clark Gable's big ears, Eddie Cantor's big eyes, and Jimmy Durante's big nose.

He mentioned these on Saturday when opening Wembley, Hospital carnival.

"Wembley," he said, "is a place of big things. You get the biggest crowds I ever saw; you have a big stadium and a big pool. You get more like Hollywood every day."

London, July 7.

The Privy Council Committee appointed last week by the King to deal with the arrangements for his coronation next year met for the first time at St. James's Palace to-day.

The Committee are headed by the Duke of York. He was one of the first to reach the Palace.

Among those who attended were the Prime Minister, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Duke of Norfolk (Earl Marshal of England), Mr. Winston Churchill, Mr. Duff Cooper, Mr. Lloyd George, and Mr. C. R. Attlee.

The meeting lasted about three-quarters of an hour. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald presided.

The Committee appointed an executive committee of between 20 and 30 members, mostly from outside the Coronation Committee.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

LAW SOCIETY'S ACTION AGAINST A SOLICITOR

Counsel's Submission

The motion brought by the Incorporated Law Society of Hong Kong to have the name of a local solicitor struck off the rolls of the Court was concluded before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, K. C., and the Acting Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden, in the Full Court yesterday morning when judgment was reserved.

The solicitor was alleged to have entered into partnership with unqualified persons between February 5, 1925, and March, 1928, and between April, 1928, and the end of March, 1929.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K. C., instructed by Mr. D. L. Strellett, Secretary of the Incorporated Law Society of Hong Kong, appeared in support of the motion, while Mr. Leo D'Almada, J. R., instructed by Mr. P. M. Hodgson, represented the respondent.

Mr. D'Almada made further reference to respondent's affidavit before he resumed his address before their Lordships. It dealt with the report that was not on the file, and that the agreement of a person or persons not qualified to deal was denied, against the evidence of which there was none at all.

The other charges against the respondent were fully answered in two paragraphs of the affidavit. He submitted that those two paragraphs did not serve as an agreement.

The confirmation of costs between his client and the interpreters was the usual custom of all solicitors practising in the Colony.

There was no evidence of impropriety in the agreements carried out.

With regard to the letters written in England, Mr. D'Almada asked if there was one single feature inconsistent with respondent's condition of his statement.

In 1929, respondent was in Painsford, England, applying for an appointment which he failed to secure. In 1935, he received a telegram asking him to return to the Colony to practice, as his successor in the firm had passed away. He gave his assent in a cabled reply and booked his passage. A few days later another telegram came, advising him of the bad condition of business in Hong Kong, and for him to cancel his sailing.

He had decided, however, to return in any event, and when he arrived in the Colony in January, 1936, he was met by the applicants.

THE CLAUSE

There was a clause in the agreement which stated that respondent could have leave of seven months once in three years. It was Mr. D'Almada's submission that a firm of solicitors could not carry on for seven months without an attorney.

Respondent had never contemplated anything wrong in writing out the articles of the agreement, there was no secrecy attached to it, and the whole circumstances that had to be considered was that if respondent's conduct ten years ago could merit the punishment the applicants were asking their Lordships to inflict on him.

Mr. D'Almada reiterated that the respondent's affidavit was consistent. There had been nothing against him from 1926 until he was charged recently, which had to be taken in his favour. If the respondent was guilty, the interest of the public must be safeguarded. As it was, the public knew who the respondent was, and the publicity was enough punishment, and to be regarded as a deterrent. The ventilation of this matter was ample safeguard in a place such as Hong Kong.

To be stricken off the rolls meant ruin. If there had been an offence, it would be sufficient to make an order for respondent to pay costs. If that was insufficient punishment, according to their Lordships, then there was the other alternative of suspending him for the shortest of periods. That, being an entirely adequate punishment, would afford the respondent to redeem himself. Later, automatically, at the conclusion of the suspension.

THE GRAVITY

The gravity of the charges against the respondent required much more minimum of proof in support of those charges, and as that failed to prove the case, he submitted that the motion be dismissed.

Mr. Sheldon said that the respondent meant to do what he did, and that there was an intention of agreement to enter into partnership.

The words "wilfully and knowingly" were true in the charge, as he respondent, knew that the persons were not qualified to deal with at a later date, if not at the beginning.

According to Mr. Sheldon, business must have been carried on, as no one made agreements in fun. Assuming that wrongful agreements had occurred there were several answers: If there had been a single professional act of the respondent after the agreement had been entered into, then the statutes must be enforced.

Mr. Sheldon said that as to the ten years that had lapsed before the respondent had been discovered, it was immediately brought before the notice of the Incorporated Law Society of Hong Kong.

Mr. D'Almada's objection to that statement was sustained by their Lordships.

Mr. D'Almada, in conclusion, said that one successor of the said firm had died, and that the respondent was wholly right in his letters written in England.

Judgment was reserved.

MAINTENANCE CASE

Kit-Fat And Concubine

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE

Charged with having failed to provide a reasonable maintenance between May 18 and July 23, Wong Pui Ying, living at No. 7 Wing Fung Street, first floor, was summoned before Mr. C. B. Burgess at the Central Court yesterday by his wife, Li Fun Ying, living at No. 150, Lockhart Road.

It appears that the wife would not live with her husband while he kept a concubine, she was therefore applying for maintenance.

His Worship held that if the kit-fat wife would not live with the concubine then the husband must provide for her elsewhere.

Defendant said that he must calculate on his income which was $40 per month. The complainant estimated that the defendant's income should be about $80 per month as he had told her four years ago that his salary was $40.

Defendant then said that he had to keep a young child and also some debts had to be paid off. This, latter, he was doing at the rate of $20 per month.

The Magistrate asked the complainant if she would be satisfied with $15 a month. Complainant said that she wanted $20. Defendant said that he could not pay $15 but could manage $8. His Worship said that that was not enough.

Defendant went on to explain that moneylenders were taking $15 a month from him and in another case he was paying, through the Court, a monthly sum of $5. When asked by His Worship to make out a statement of his debts, the defendant said that he could not.

The Magistrate remanded the case for one week for the defendant to procure a statement from his creditors relating to his debts.

A CASE TO ANSWER

IN TRADE MARK CASE

Continuing the proceedings before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Court yesterday wherein the Paul Battery Co. and the Sunlight Co. were summoned for the possession of batteries and labels to which trade marks so nearly resembling that of the "Ever-ready batteries" had been applied so as calculated to deceive. The two summonses related to two Trade Marks, (1) Trade Mark No. 211 of 1928 and (2) Trade Mark No. 7 of 1930.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. D. L. Strellett, appeared for the defendants and pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Hugh-Jones was for the prosecuting, while Mr. R. A. S. Waters of the plaintiff firm was in court.

Mr. Waters was re-examined yesterday by Mr. Hugh-Jones and said that the business in Hong Kong as compared with other places was inferior, but he (witness) felt that the businesses in Guatemala and Ceylon were being affected by the Paul Battery Co.

Confronted with a number of other batteries of other makes, witness said that he considered some of them were infringements of their mark but proceedings were not instituted because they had not interfered with business either in Hong Kong, China or elsewhere. Proceedings would certainly be taken if they had done so.

OTHER ACTIONS

Mr. Hugh-Jones then produced a list of actions taken out in respect of the protection of their brands. In all the defendants had been convicted or had come to some arrangement.

In the previous hearing Mr. Waters had said that he did not think that No. 7 of 1930 was an infringement. Mr. Hugh-Jones explained yesterday that witness meant that people such as His Worship or himself would not be deceived, but the illiterate might thus be deceived.

Mr. Sheldon then addressed His Worship and said that if there were no evidence on which a jury could convict then it was unfair to the defendants to continue with the proceedings in view of the expense. He submitted that there was no case to answer.

Counsel said that he did not intend to deal with No. 7 of 1930 as there was obviously no infringement there.

In his opening Mr. Hugh-Jones had said that the prosecution was not on the wording but on the general colouring. The reasons for the prosecution, namely those abroad were novel ones.

The first answer to the charge was that, in fact there was no similarity of the marks. There were no goods to which the mark had been applied.

The second was that there cannot be the essential ingredient of the charge, that is the reasonable possibility of deception. The reason for that is that there have been no goods on the market since 1929 or 1930 and the charge was that of having on the market in June 1936 goods calculated to deceive. How could it be said that there was evidence to convict when there were no goods on the market. There was no possibility of deception.

THE MAKE-UP

Continuing Mr. Sheldon said that the question of the make-up, assuming that the get-up was common to the trade, it could not be said that they have taken any of those distinctive marks. The distinctive features were the word "Ever-ready", the French grey colour and the background of red. The defendants' marks had none of those features.

Mr. Hugh-Jones then addressed His Worship on the facts of the case and pointed out that the bulk of their buyers were of the illiterate class of Chinese over China. Those people must certainly go by the colour.

Mr. Schofield held that there was a case to answer on the first summons but that constituting the second was discharged.

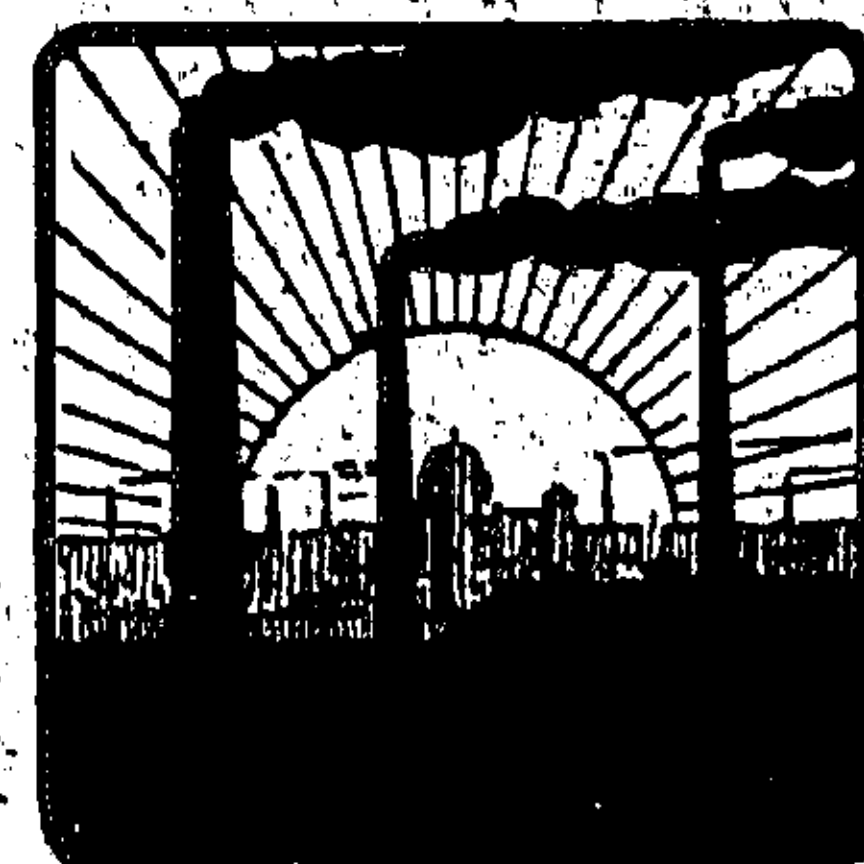

The case was adjourned until August 8.

STOWAWAYS BEFORE COURT

THREE CASES DEALT WITH

Three stowaways appeared before Mr. C. B. Burgess at the Central Court yesterday. Edward Zarins, 39, was charged with being a stowaway on board the S.S. President Lincoln from Hong Kong to Manila, and with a Breach of the Passport Ordinance.

Det. Sgt. Russell stated that the defendant was previously detained in the House of Detention and had left there to look for work. He had gone to Canton and had returned after a few days and had stowed away on board the President Lincoln. He had previously possessed an expired passport but that had since been lost.

Sergeant Russell asked for an expulsion order on the second charge, and stated that stowaways were becoming too frequent in the Colony.

The defendant pleaded for leniency. He was sentenced to one month on the first charge and an expulsion order was made out on the second.

ANOTHER CASE

The second stowaway, Jose Santiago, 17, was charged with stowing away on board the President Lincoln from Shanghai to Manila.

Det. Sgt. Russell stated that the defendant arrived in Hong Kong on July 28. He had been discharged from prison on July 3 and sent to Shanghai at his own request. He had been there but a few days when he stowed away on board the President Lincoln to Manila. Defendant was sentenced to 2 months.

PARENTS COME FORWARD

George Goldin, aged 17, the third stowaway, was discharged.

Det. Sgt. Russell said the defendant's parents were in Hong Kong and were willing to pay the Dollar Shipping Company for the passage from Manila to Hong Kong. The Company was willing and he therefore asked that the charge be withdrawn.

RICKSHAW COOLIE AND HIS FARE

Dumps Stricken Man In Street

"DASTARDLY ACTION"

A test case was heard at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday involving a rickshaw coolie charged before Mr. E. Himsforth with "failing to complete a journey."

It was alleged by the prosecution that the coolie, Chan Sze, 49, dumped his fare in Fife Street near Portland Street when he became aware that the latter had fainted. It was his intention, the prosecution alleged to leave the sick man in the street, and run away.

The accused was prevented from doing so by a witness of the incident named Lam On Wan, a 21-year-old youth. Lam made Chan take his fare to the Mong Kok Station. The police then made arrangements for the stricken man to be taken to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

Sub-Inspector Rogers (prosecuting) said that Chan was hired to take his passenger, Chung King Heung, in Shanghai Street to Chung Sha Wan. The fare agreed upon was 30 cents.

Describing accused's action as "particularly dastardly," the Ma-

WOMAN WITH BAD COINS

SEQUEL TO RAID

Chan Mui, a Chinese female, was charged before Mr. C. B. Burgess at the Central Court yesterday with the possession of 268 counterfeit 5 cent pieces, knowing them to be counterfeit and with intent to utter them.

Defendant said that they were given to her by a man.

Det. Sgt. C. Byron, appearing on behalf of Sub-Inspector Flattery stated that at 11 a.m. on July 21, R. O. Ward and others carried out a raid at No. 32 Newmarket Street, looking for tobacco. During the raid they found the defendant sitting on a bed with a child in her arms and a packet of coins in one hand. The coins were found to be counterfeit.

C. R. O. 93, Yip Wai and R. O. Ward gave evidence of the raid, after which Lum Pui, a Chinese money changer, gave evidence as regards the genuineness of the coins. The coins were light in weight, brittle and had in colour.

Defendant desired to give sworn evidence and in the box said that when the revenue officers raided the flat, they entered the front cubicle and found nothing. They then went to the front sitting room, where there was a man, who, defendant said, gave her the coins.

The first witness was recalled and said that when the house was raided the front room was searched first. The man there was given instructions not to move or communicate with anyone. He had done so because he had been under observation all the time.

Defendant then said that the witness was not the man who had given her the coins, but it was his partner.

Sergeant Byron said that witness was the man who had been accused by the defendant at the time.

Ho Sui Wan, wife of Cheung Shun, the partner, said that her husband was in Canton, and that she was asleep at the time of the raid.

Defendant was convicted. She pleaded for leniency in view of her four children. His Worship said that if she had been a man he would have imposed the full 6 months, but he was now willing to remit two months.

Defendant was sentenced to four months.

MURDER CHARGE

Bhai Singh, P.C.B. 80, charged with the murder of Sahib Singh, P.C.B. 885 on July 28, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Court yesterday and was formally remanded for one week. Mr. J. Murphy, C.D.I., appeared for the prosecution and asked for the remand.

POSSESSION OF A REVOLVER
An earth coolie, named Tung Kau, aged 24 years, was charged before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with possession of a revolver and four rounds of ammunition without a licence, at the Kum Lung Tea House, No. 480 Prince Edward Road.

Detective Sergeant P. G. MacPherson for the prosecution applied for a week's remand which was granted. He said that he had not yet received instructions whether the case was for committal or to be taken summarily.

Lam On Wan, was complimented by the Bench for his public spirited action.

Modern Life Insurance

widow an income nearer to this present income, gradually decreasing over a period of four or five years until it drops to the minimum income; by that time we will assume that the children's educational policies are paying their education expenses.

(6) He needs a small policy which we might designate an emergency fund, i.e., a lump sum to be left with the Company at a guaranteed minimum rate of interest (usually 3 1/2 per cent.) on which the family may draw in cases of severe illnesses, operations or perhaps to start a child off in a certain career.

(7) He hopes to retire some day and unless he is in some concern which has a Provident Fund or a Retirement Pension, he has to make up that pension himself and there is no easier way of doing this than in Life Insurance. All the previous six needs are based on the supposition that the man may not live to retirement, but if he does live, he may outlive his income and let us assume here that he has lived to retirement, educated his children, paid off the mortgage on his house, he can then take the cash value of all his policies and buy for himself and his wife, if she is still alive, a pension which will last until the death of the last survivor. A man who can accomplish all these things for his family does not have to worry when he reads his morning paper. He does not tremble when he sees the share page. He eats a better breakfast and does a better job knowing that through Life Insurance he can accomplish everything for his family he wants and that every dollar he pays in is worth 100 cents.

ANNUITIES

I have just mentioned the word Pension. Another word which no doubt is familiar to you and on which you would like some information, is the word Annuities. There is no need for me to tell you that an Annuity is purchased by paying the Insurance Company a lump sum of money in order to obtain an income for life. That is what is called an Immediate Annuity, and dies with the pensioner. But there are other kinds of Annuities, namely the one I have just mentioned which is called a Joint Life Last Survivorship Annuity, which provides a pension to two persons until the death of the last survivor, and the pension may be reduced at the death of the first party to any fraction of the original pension if desired. That is to say, a man may buy a Joint Life Last Survivorship Pension for his wife and himself for say £500.00, per year reducing to £300.00 on the death of one of them. Another type of Annuity is the Guaranteed Annuity where, in the event of the death of the Annuitant, before a certain number of years guaranteed, the pension may be continued to his Estate or Beneficiary until the end of the guaranteed period, but should the Annuitant outlive that period, the pension then dies at his death as in the case of the ordinary Annuity first mentioned.

A Guaranteed Annuity may be guaranteed for any number of years, usually 10, 15 or 20, whichever suits the applicant best. Lastly, there is the Deferred Annuity which may be purchased by a young man by instalments over a number of years and then paid out to him in the form of a pension at a certain stipulated age, and guaranteed usually for at least 10 years. In fact, applied to human problems, there is nothing within reason which the modern Life Insurance contract cannot accomplish. The whole business is so scientific now-a-days and so wrapped up with every man's financial problems that is of the utmost importance that the public only deal with the whole time fully qualified agent, and not through Banks, brokers or lawyers, who only have a surface knowledge of the business. (Laughter). You would not go to a doctor for advice on how to build a house, then why go to your Banker or sharebroker for advice on Life Insurance? He knows very little more about it than you do. So many men say "I want to consult my wife." When I hear that I cannot help repressing a smile. How on earth can a man's wife advise him about Insurance? Why ask your wife for permission to protect her? She will appreciate it more if you do it first and tell her after!

Talking about wives reminds me of a funny story, in which a widow discovered a Life Insurance policy in her late husband's papers for $5,000.00. She promptly went to the monumental masons and asked if she could have the words "Rest in Peace" engraved on the Headstone of her Husband's grave. (Laughter). After a few days she went round to the Insurance Company to collect the cash, but was politely informed that this was only a sample of a Policy which had been submitted to her husband, but not taken. Back again she went to the monumental shop and asked if she could have the inscription altered. That was impossible. Could she add to it? Certainly, Madam, was the reply. What would you like to add? "Till I Come" said the widow. (Laughter).

FUNNY LETTERS

We get some funny letters in our daily routine. One was received by one of our agents the other day somewhat on these lines:—"Dear So-and-So, Now that I have paid my first premium and passed the medical examination, I am worth more dead than alive. How about doing me in and marrying the widow, and how!" (Laughter).

Another amusing yarn in connection with Insurance cropped up during the big depression in America a few years ago when a broker walked into the office of one of his clients and demanded a further $50,000 margin, the client's retort was:—"Sorry, but it is quite impossible, I am cleaned out."

Broker:—"What about your furniture?"

Client:—"Mortgaged up to the top shelf."

Broker:—"How about your Life Insurance?"

Client:—"Gee! I forgot about that, I have $50,000 policy with the New York Life, I will see what I can raise on that."

BUSINESS PROTECTION

Modern Life Insurance is used very largely to protect business interests. For example, a young man buying out an older man in a business may take an Endowment Policy on the older partner's life for the amount of the older partner's share in the business which he is purchasing, and at the older partner's death or when the policy falls due, the business then belongs to the younger partner. Take another example, two men, Smith and Jones, are partners in a business, each with $30,000 of capital in that business. They insure each other and have a business agreement drawn up by their lawyers that in the event of Smith's death, Jones, the surviving partner, will use the $30,000 of insurance he took on Smith's life to buy Smith's family out of the business, so that the surviving partner may carry on the business and bring in new capital, and the deceased partner will know that his family have received their equity, and also the surviving partner is guaranteed against having to support his deceased partner's dependents.

Gentlemen, I have endeavoured to make my subject as interesting as possible, and though it may be of more interest to the Insurance fraternity, I hope that those of you who are not Insurance men will have really learnt something about Life Insurance which will be helpful to yourselves. (Applause).

THANKS EXPRESSED

Proposing a vote of thanks to the speaker on behalf of the Club, Rotarian Horace Lo mentioned that in the beginning of his talk Rotarian Mitchell asked, "What is Life Insurance? What does that word convey to you?" It reminded the speaker that when an Insurance agent approaches a person and tries to get him insured, the person got the impression that the insurance company would like him to live forever, but on signing up a policy the impression gained by the person is that the company expected him to die the next day! (Laughter). The history and continued growth of Insurance companies, said Rotarian Lo, showed that Life Insurance did fill a widespread need in the world. (Applause).

SECOND OF THE CHARGES PROVED

Extradition Proceedings

JUDGMENT DELIVERED

Judgment in the extradition proceedings against Yu Lap-ful alias Li Chi-hon alias Li Shek-yun, was delivered by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Court yesterday.

Yu Lap-ful was charged with (a) the murder of Mr. Tang U Lo, Secretary to Mr. T. V. Soong, the then Minister of Finance, (b) the attempted murder of Mr. T. V. Soong, (c) conspiring to murder Mr. T. V. Soong, and (d) inciting and encouraging others to murder Mr. T. V. Soong at the North Railway Station, Shanghai, on July 23, 1931.

Mr. D. Strellett was for the Crown. Mr. Peter H. Sin was for the defendant.

THE JUDGMENT

In delivering a written judgment Mr. Schofield said:—

In this case the accusation against the defendant as originally made can be divided into 4 charges, all based on the same set of facts, and all the offences are alleged to have been committed at the same time and place, namely Shanghai North Station on July 23, 1931.

Of these 4 offences, the first a murder, the second an attempt to murder, and the fourth, soliciting and encouraging other persons to commit murder, are observed facts, according to the two chief witnesses for the prosecution. The third, conspiring with others to commit murder, is purely a matter of reasonable inference from those facts.

The whole case rests on the evidence of the two railway policemen, the 6th and 7th witnesses. Each gave a clear and very detailed account of events in the waiting hall of the North Station, which were to a great extent viewed by them from different positions, the 6th pillar north in the case of Chiu, the 4th pillar south in the case of Luk. This accounts for certain differences in their evidence. That there should also be some discrepancies between them is not surprising: a total absence of discrepancies would be not only surprising but suspicious. Luk was not shaken when cross-examined, but Chiu altered his account of the number of men round No. 2 pillar south from 5 to 3. Whether this is due to thinking over his evidence in the interval between examination and cross-examination, which was 6 days, or to consultation with Luk, it is impossible to say. The amount of detail remembered is not really surprising: the events were extremely dramatic and of a type certain to impress themselves on the memory of police officers, the more so as they must have reported on them, and had them recalled to mind by the showing to them of fugitive's photo.

RECOGNISED AS LEADER

The main point of their evidence is their statement that they recognised fugitive as the leader of the gang of murderers on July 23, 1931, and their identification of him at a parade in Victoria Gaol on March 19, 1936, held under the best possible conditions and with every conceivable precaution. The possibility that the witnesses learned fugitive's likeness from photos only, which must have been the case if the defence is to be believed, is contrary to plain evidence, and is not strong enough to entitle me to say that there is not sufficient evidence to justify extradition. The length of time Luk spent before picking out fugitive seems to me to indicate the honesty of the identifier, as well, perhaps, as a weaker visual memory than that of Chiu. The semi-recognition of the other man on parade also helped to delay Luk's identification of fugitive, once in Chiu's case, twice in Luk's case, and there is nothing in the evidence to show that the Nanking authorities connected fugitive with this murder before December 1932, when the witnesses picked out his photo from 15 others. Fugitive's own evidence as to his actual whereabouts on that date is brief and vague, and detail of his doings about that date is lacking. Detailed corroboration, however, has been obtained to the effect that about that date a reputable witness saw him at a dinner in Canton. As regards this, I consider that the

The lady dancer of Duo Rossilanos who will make their bow to the Hong Kong public on the Roof Garden of the Hong Kong Hotel on Saturday, August 1, 1936.

LOS ROSSILANOS

AT THE HONG KONG HOTEL

Patrons of the Hong Kong Hotel have an exceptional treat in store for them next Saturday night, when Los Rossilanos, a talented pair of acrobatic and characteristic dancers, make their debut in that Establishment and will perform during the dinner dance in the Roof Garden. From all accounts received, this certainly promises to be one of the most exhilarating and brightest cabaret turns ever presented locally, especially when it is recalled that the duo were prize winners at the International Dancing Competition held in Vienna, and have gained renown throughout their extensive travels. These artists have appeared at the Winter Garden Pavillion, Berlin, and at some of the principal Paris Theatres.

In view of anticipated heavy bookings for Saturday intending diners are advised to make early reservations.

evidence for an alibi, in view of the possibilities of suggestion acting on the witness's evidently vague memories, is not so overwhelming as to oblige me to say that witnesses for the prosecution must have made a mistake, or that there is no case for fugitive to answer.

Fugitive's statement that he could have been arrested in 1932, but was not, seems much more consistent with the prosecution's story than with his own. The only two witnesses who saw him at the North Station say they did not know his name, and until this was known evidently nothing could be done except in the event of a chance recognition: further, it appears he was in the International Settlement, at least part of the time, and only left it after fighting broke out in Chapel. According to him, the Nanking Government was determined to get him into its power after early 1932; yet, quite unaccountably on his own showing, it left him alone till quite recently. Counsel for the Crown has pointed out the phrase used by him "after I was under the protection of the 19th Route Army, I felt safe," which witness explains as "safe against having my men disarmed." (This is differently expressed in the depositions, but that appears to have been the sense of the words used).

NOT WANTED

From this it is reasonable to infer that that army was in 1932 and 1933 on such terms with Nanking that the arrest of an officer in its midst was either impossible or was certain to cause grave trouble. The inference is, then, that in fact fugitive was not particularly "wanted" by Nanking till after his photo was recognised in December 1932; that he was then and afterwards practically inaccessible to the Police; and that after the People's Government in Fukien collapsed he left the country. I therefore consider that fugitive is left with a strong or probable case to answer, and that I have

MAN WHO SERVED WITH KITCHENER

Death Of Mr. Frank Trollope

LOCAL CREMATION

A man who served with Kitchener's Own in the Boer War nearly 35 years ago, died in the Colony on Saturday last.

He was Mr. Frank Anthony Trollope, a retired planter, who passed away suddenly at his residence, No. 114, Talpo Road, at the age of 64 years.

The late Mr. Trollope hailed from Australia. He served in the Boer War as a trooper in 1901 and gained the Kitchener's Medal with five bars.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon when the remains were cremated at the Japanese Crematorium, Sookun-poo. It is understood the ashes are to be sent to Singapore.

The deceased came to Hong Kong from Singapore about a month ago.

NEW AUSTRALIAN INDUSTRY

AIRCRAFT AND AERO ENGINE MANUFACTURE

Primarily in the interests of Defence, but also as an important further step in Australian industrial advancement, the manufacture of complete aircraft is to be undertaken by a Company with a share capital of £1,000,000.

The formation of the Company has been undertaken, at the invitation of the Commonwealth Government, by a Syndicate composed of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company Ltd., the Broken Hill Associated Smelters, Ltd., and General Motors-Holdens Ltd. (with whom others may be associated later). The Syndicate asks for no Government subsidy, expects to make no profit for a number of years, and embarks on the project as a national duty.

The Company will be registered on the return of experts who have been sent abroad to study the latest phases of complete aircraft manufacture, when a factory of the most modern type will be established.

PROGRESSIVE DEVELOPMENT

Progressive development is envisaged, commencing with the airframes, following with engines at the earliest possible moment. In addition to manufacture for Air Force requirements, it is proposed to build for the local commercial field and eventually, it is hoped, for export. From the start the utmost possible use will be made of Australian materials and Australian labour.

Government orders, subject to satisfactory price arrangements, will be placed for machines of British Service type in order to ensure interchangeability between British Air Force Machines and those used in Australia. The British Government will assist with technical information and in every other way possible.

The Government appreciates the action of the participating companies in undertaking to initiate this manufacturing industry without public financial assistance, and feels that not only will the local industry be of importance to Australia, but also to Imperial defence; further, that the new enterprise will be of benefit to Australian industry generally by absorbing local materials and labour as manufacture develops.

BRITAIN'S NEXT PRIME MINISTER?

There is a general impression in Great Britain that Mr. Stanley Baldwin will take the opportunity provided by the coronation of King Edward VIII next May to retire from the leadership of the Conservative Party. Who will be his successor? The Labour and Liberal Opposition have only small representation at present in Parliament. Mr. Baldwin's successor is practically certain to be the next Prime Minister. Speculation is rife with names like those of Mr. Winston Churchill, Mr. Anthony Eden and Mr. Neville Chamberlain.

When the late King passed over Lord Curzon in favour of Mr. Baldwin for the Premiership more than a decade ago, it was generally considered that he established for at least some time to come a rule that the Prime Minister should be chosen from the House of Commons. Undoubtedly the most brilliant man in the Commons is Mr. Winston Churchill, and he belongs to the Government side of the House, though he frequently finds occasion vigorously to criticize official Conservative policy. Mr. Churchill has had long parliamentary experience, and has often held high office. He is a magnificent debater. He comes of a family that for centuries has been associated with the inner springs of British government.

But, perhaps chiefly for this very reason, it is not likely that he will be the next wearer of Mr. Baldwin's robe. The British public, while fully recognizing Mr. Churchill's almost unique gifts, is inclined to doubt whether he has sufficient personal authority. Moreover, whether the system of national government continues or not, it will be essential for a long time to come that the Conservative Party should retain the support of those who formerly composed the right wings of the Liberal and Labour parties, and this it would be unlikely to do under the leadership of a man of Mr. Churchill's more recent affiliations.

It is unfortunately true, that very few members of Mr. Baldwin's Cabinet have succeeded greatly in increasing their reputations in recent months. Such as have done so have not in general

NORTH CHINA SMUGGLING

Small Junks Used As Transport

Tientsin, July 28.
A total of 30,000 cases of gasoline and kerosene have been smuggled into Tientsin from East Hopei. The British and American oil merchants are suffering heavily.

At Dairen, it is reliably reported, that more than 50,000 000 pieces of artificial silk are stored ready to be sent to Tientsin. The monthly average amount of artificial silk smuggled into Tientsin is 2,000,000 pieces. Because of the large quantities of artificial silk stored in Tientsin, only 570,000 pieces were smuggled into Tientsin last month.

The smugglers are now using small junks to transport the goods to small towns in the interior by river. Special precaution is being taken by the Customs authorities to stop this practice, which will destroy the rural economy of the country.

Large quantities of smuggled goods are being sent to Ts'nan by train lately. The Customs authorities detained one train load of smuggled goods to-day at the station.

JAPANESE WAR GAMES

Chinese Residents Worried

Peiping, July 28.
More than 100 Japanese soldiers stationed at Fongtai staged a series of manoeuvres in the western suburbs of Fongtai during the last few days.

On July 15 these troops practised fighting along the Peiping-Tientsin railway line.

Twelve Japanese soldiers stationed in Tientsin arrived here by train. These Japanese soldiers proceeded to the Japanese barracks immediately upon their arrival.

Lately, Japanese soldiers in small groups are staging military exercises practically everywhere in North China. This kind of action on the part of the Japanese authorities without notifying the Chinese Government, has created great anxiety among the Chinese people residing in the area.

GERMAN WARSHIPS ON MOVE

Reinforce the German Battle-ships

Berlin, July 27.
To reinforce the German Battle-ships "Deutschland" and "Admiral Scheer" which were sent to Spain in order to stand by and protect those foreigners in danger, the Cruiser "Koeln" and a Flotilla of three Torpedo boats were ordered to the Spanish coast on Monday.

Berlin, July 27.
The German cruiser Koeln and three torpedo-boats left for Spain this evening.

Reuter.
been in the front rank of parliamentarians from whom leaders are usually drawn. A notable exception is the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, who has steered the ship of state through some very choppy waters. But Mr. Eden is hardly regarded as a serious candidate for the highest office in the realm. His experience has been very short, and has been limited to a single class of problem.

There remains Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Mr. Chamberlain is skilled in parliamentary tactics, and is unlikely to allow extremist policy to run away with his party. He is sufficiently a traditional Conservative not to lose the support of the Government right wing, yet he might be more acceptable than Mr. Churchill to the more radical section of the National Government's followers. On the whole, therefore, it is to Mr. Neville Chamberlain that informed opinion at this time looks for Mr. Baldwin's successor. But these are trying times, for peoples and therefore for governments. Men—and parties—will have to show themselves big indeed to be masters of the events which may transpire between now and next May.

ROYAL AIR FORCE

PILOTS OF 1911

On Saturday July 11th Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, Inspector-General of the R.A.F. will have reached the twenty-fifth anniversary of the grant of an air pilot's certificate. He was No. 108, of July 18, 1911. The only officers in the Force now senior to him in this respect is Air Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore, A.O.C., Coastal Command, who is expected shortly to become Commandant of the Imperial Defence College. His certificate was No. 72, dated April 25, 1911.

Only two other officers remain on the active list who qualified in 1911 and thus attain their silver jubilee as pilots this year. Air Marshal Sir Cyril Newall, Air Member for Supply and Organization, took certificate No. 144 on October 3, 1911; and Group Captain G. B. Daere, Air Attache at Rome, received No. 162, dated November 28, 1911.

THE SOLE SURVIVOR
Sir Robert Brooke-Popham is now the sole survivor on the active list of the members of the Air Battalion, Royal Engineers, which preceded the Royal Flying Corps. In April, 1912, he took over the command of the Aeroplane Company on Salisbury Plain from Captain Fulton. This company formed No. 3 Squadron of the R.F.C., and under Major Brooke-Popham took part in Army manoeuvres in 1912. When the War broke out he went to France as Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General on the headquarters staff of the R.F.C. Air Marshal Joubert de la Ferte joined the R.F.C. from the Royal Artillery in 1913, having previously obtained the Royal Aero Club's certificate (No. 280) September 3, 1912. During the War he served in France, Egypt, and Italy, and was in command of the R.A.F. in the latter country. After the War he became an instructor to the R.A.F. Staff College and also served as Deputy Director of Personnel and Deputy Director of Manning at the Air Ministry. In 1926 he was posted for duty as R.A.F. instructor at the Imperial Defence College, and on relinquishing this post in 1929 was appointed to command No. 23 Group, Inland Area, subsequently becoming Commandant of the Staff College in September, 1930. Since January, 1934, he has commanded Fighting Area, now renamed No. 11 (Fighter) Group. He was promoted to the rank of Air Vice-Marshal on January 1, 1933, and to his present rank on July 1, 1936.

AIR COMMODORE TEDDER
Air Commodore Tedder was commissioned in the Dorsetshire Regiment in 1913, and after graduating as a Service pilot in 1916 he served with the R.F.C. in France, where for some months he commanded No. 70 Squadron. After service in England he proceeded in May, 1918, to Egypt, where he commanded the School of Navigation and Bomb-dropping and No. 38 Training Wing. He has completed courses at the R.N. Staff College and the Imperial Defence College. His R.A.F. appointments include the command of No. 2 Flying Training School from November, 1924, to January, 1927, Air Staff (Training) duties at the Air Ministry during 1928, and an Instructorship at the R.A.F. Staff College from 1929 to 1932, when he was appointed to command the Air Armament School. Since April, 1934, he has been Director of Training at the Air Ministry. He received his promotion to Air Commodore in July, 1934.

Air Commodore Hill was commissioned in the Royal Fusiliers in 1914, and in June, 1916, he was appointed to the R.F.C. He served in France during the Great War. In 1924, having graduated at the R.A.F. Staff College, he was employed temporarily on Air Staff duties at Inland Area Headquarters, until posted to the command of No. 45 Squadron in Iraq later in that year. In 1926 he was transferred to the Middle East Command and returned in 1927 to take up an appointment as Instructor at the R.A.F. Staff College. Since 1932 he has been employed as Deputy Director of Repair and Maintenance at the Air Ministry, and in 1934 was appointed an Air Aide-de-Camp to the King. He was promoted to Wing Commander in 1925, to Group Captain in 1932, and to his present rank on July 1, 1936.

SIR A. LONGMORE'S NEW POST
The Air Ministry announces the following appointments:—
Air Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore, K.C.B., D.S.O., to be Commandant of the Imperial Defence College (September 1), vice Major-General R. H. Haining, D.S.O.
Air Marshal Philip Bennett Joubert de la Ferte, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., to be Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Coastal Command, Royal Air Force (September 1), vice Air Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore.
Air Commodore Arthur William Tedder to be Air Officer Commanding, Royal Air Force Far East (in October), vice Air Commodore Sydney William Smith, O.B.E.
Air Commodore Roderic Maxwell Hill, M.C., A.F.C., to be Air Officer Commanding, British Forces in Palestine and Transjordan (in August), vice Air Vice-Marshal Richard Edmund Charles Peirse, D.S.O., A.F.C.

SECOND TEST MATCH ABANDONED

Interruption Caused By Bad Light

ENGLAND UNFORTUNATE

The Second Test Match at Manchester was abandoned as a draw following interruption by bad light before the tea interval. Expectations of resuming in an hour did not materialise and England thus missed the opportunity of winning the match after her great batting display.

Mustaq Ali and Merchant scored centuries for All-India. The score stood at 390 for 5 when the match was abandoned. Their combined total was only 22 runs more than that of England's first innings total of 571, and they had five wickets in hand.

RAIN DELAYS THE START

London, July 28.

Rain delayed the resumption of the Second Test Match at Manchester for twenty five minutes. There were 2,000 spectators present when Mustaq Ali (105 not out) and Merchant (79 not out) continued their innings.

A combination of fast and slow right and left hand bowlers did not trouble the batsmen in the least who saw the 200 up on the board after 150 minutes play.

FIRST WICKET FALLS
However, with the total at 203, Robins tempted Mustaq Ali to play into his hand and terminate the stubborn first-wicket partnership.

Mustaq Ali scored 112 runs in a chanceless innings in which he gave some fine strokes. He was at the wicket for 155 minutes and hit seventeen boundaries.

MERCHANT DISMISSED

Merchant, playing a stolid game, reached his century in 265 minutes and with the addition of 14 runs he stepped in front of a straight one from Hammond, 279 for 2. He played a patient game, hitting all round the wicket and driving thirteen times to the boundary. He was in partnership with Ramaswami for 95 minutes. When an adjournment was made for lunch, Ramaswami had scored 45 and Major C. K. Nayudu 2 runs, the total being 288 for 2.

Twenty runs came in after lunch when Ramaswami was beaten in playing forward to a leg spinner from Robins. He was nearly two hours at the wicket in scoring 50 runs and he drove to the off boundary on six occasions, 313 for 3.

REGULAR ARMY IN BRITAIN

Recruit Shortage Solution

London, July 28.
In view of the shortage of recruits for the regular Army, the War Minister, Mr. Duff Cooper announced in the House of Commons that he proposed to create a new infantry section of supplementary reserve with the initial establishment of 17,000 men, enlistment to be for general service in the infantry for six years with the option four-year re-engagements, and open to unmarried men between 17 and 25.

The enlisted men will train for twenty six weeks in the first year and fourteen days annually thereafter, receive free clothing and during training full pay as for the regular infantry with an annual bounty of £8.

RAILWAY COACHES OVERTURNED

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Munich, July 28.
A tornado followed by a hail-storm ravaged Lake Starnberg section in the East of Munich on Monday, overturning five railway coaches and demolishing six wagons of a travelling circus. The train fortunately only contained 14 passengers, four of whom suffered injuries, while ten occupants of the circus caravan were more or less seriously hurt.

Numerous farms and buildings were destroyed, while crops were ruined by the hail. The damage suffered is estimated at 400,000 marks.

REBELS AIM AT KEY POSITION

Road Leading To San Sebastian

GOVERNMENT TROOPS ENTRENCHED

Battle Proceeding Near Renteria

London, July 28. Although news from various parts of Spain is still conflicting, the general impression is that the Government forces have successfully resisted concentration on the capital and that the situation is developing more in their favour.

In Madrid the authorities have arranged facilities for foreigners wishing to leave and have promised escorts to Alicante where warships can evacuate them. Trains are running between Madrid and Alicante to Valencia.—British Wireless.

FIGHT FOR KEY POSITION

London, July 28. The only reports of fighting in Spain to-day come from Hendaye which say that a battle is proceeding near Renteria, the key position on the road to San Sebastian, which the rebels aim to recapture.

Anti-Government forces at Loyola Barracks outside San Sebastian have surrendered unconditionally. Government troops in the trenches at Renteria are resisting the advance of the insurgents. Trenches and barricades have also been thrown up all over San Sebastian where women occupy advance posts.—Reuter.

BARCELONA ANXIETY

Marseilles, July 28. Barricades have also been erected at Barcelona streets where there are still 1,600 British nationals.

Miss Kathleen Marks, a resident of Barcelona, has just arrived, leaving all her property behind. She states that the British Consulate yesterday requested all women and children to go. Heavy guns have been placed in position to prevent the advance of the rebels.

The situation in Barcelona, however, is apparently improving according to London official reports, but if the rebels capture Saragossa the situation in Barcelona is expected to become serious.—Reuter.

WARSHIP SERVICES

Malta, July 28. The cruiser Ajax has departed for Gibraltar, the destroyer Graton for Barcelona and the hospital ship Maine has undergone overhaul to proceed to Barcelona on July 30. The cruiser Amphion is cruising in the Canaries to see if she can evacuate anybody.

So far 544 Britons and 241 foreigners have been evacuated by the British Navy from Catalonia. Among those landed at Bayonne from Bilbao was a group of British runs.—Reuter.

TRAIN EVACUATION

Madrid, July 28. The situation at the capital is quiet.

An international train of refugees will leave the capital on Thursday for Valencia with the Government providing a guard until the train reaches its destination where warships of foreign powers are waiting to evacuate their nationals.—Reuter.

BOMBARDMENT REPRIAL

Seville, July 28. The rebel general in a broadcast message declared that 1,300 people at Melilla belonging to sailors' families are held as hostages against further naval bombardment.—Reuter.

BULL-FIGHTERS ENROL

Madrid, July 28. Over seventy bull-fighters led by the famous matador Tramente have enrolled in the Communist Militia against the rebels.—Reuter.

WARSHIP REVOLTS

Madrid, July 27. "A state of high treason" aboard the Spanish cruiser Almirante Cervera, was revealed by the Government to-day in a decree which orders the ship to be regarded henceforth as pirate.—Reuter.

REFUGEES AIDED

London, July 27. The sum of 50,000 Marks as emergency relief for German refugees from Spain has been granted by Chancellor Hitler.—Reuter.

SUMMARY OF SITUATION

Rebel Opposition Broken

SAN SEBASTIAN RELIEF

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Madrid, July 28.

The resistance of the insurgent troops ensconced in the barracks at San Sebastian has finally been broken, according to radio and press here which attributes this success primarily to the bombardment by airplanes. The Government troops in this town which have thus been freed of responsibility will join other forces from Bilbao in order to proceed to attack Vittoria which is still in the hands of the insurgents.

The International Red Cross at Berne is understood offered to help the Spanish Red Cross, which was, however, declined since the home resources are sufficient.

The War Minister addressed an appeal to goldsmiths to place their services at the disposal of the Government and it is said that 6,000 rifles were manufactured the first day, following this appeal. All munition factories are under Government control and are working at top speed in order to ensure an adequate supply of arms and ammunition.

The press had been asked to economise in paper and the number of pages in most papers has in consequence been greatly reduced.

The Madrid municipality has taken control of the main supplies of milk for ensuring adequate distribution.

The Finance Minister extended the restrictions on stocks and exchange transactions till August 2.

The Board of Directors of the Bank of Spain voted 250,000 pesetas for the relief of victims of the uprising.—Transocean News Service.

NO BRITISH ARMS FOR SPAIN

London, July 27. No licence for the export of arms to Spain had been applied for since the trouble started in that country, Mr. Anthony Eden told the House of Commons to-day in answer to a question.

He said that any such applications would be refused, as the Government had no desire to have dealings with the belligerents.—Reuter.

NEW SPANISH AMBASSADOR

Paris, July 27. The new Spanish Ambassador to Paris, Alvaro de Albornoz, arrived here on board the French Military plane which had been assigned the famous French author Jean Malraux for a journey to Madrid by Almirante Col.—Transocean News Service.

Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, the famous explorer, who was missing for some time during his latest expedition and turned up safe last month.

REBEL ATTACK ON CAPITAL

Deciding Battle Imminent

APPEAL FOR MORE VOLUNTEERS

Hendaye, July 28.

The Spanish Government appears to have scored a considerable success on Guadarama height, where the battle which is to decide the fate of the capital is believed to be imminent.

The rebel army there is stated to be almost decimated already. But there is every indication that the struggle will develop into a war of attrition, and the side with the biggest reserve strength is likely to win.

Observers who have flown over the rival armies report a long line of reinforcements behind the rebel forces, whereas the Government troops appear to have little backing.

Besides the battle zones of Madrid and Saragossa, fresh fighting has broken out in the neighbourhood of San Sebastian and Irun. Government forces situated near San Sebastian are expecting a big rebel attack and they have broadcast a fresh appeal for volunteers. Popular Front adherents are said to be valiantly answering the call to arms, and hundreds are passing through Hendaye to fight for the Government.—Reuter.

REBELS SURRENDER

Madrid, July 28. It is officially announced that the rebels who took refuge in Alcazar fortress in the town of Toledo have finally surrendered. The whole town is now in the Government's hands. This is regarded as a big Government success.

The Minister of the Interior in an official broadcast to-day, claimed the rebel movement had been mastered. The rebels posted in the mountains near Madrid have been compelled to retreat with heavy losses, it is claimed.—Reuter.

LALINEA FIGHTING

Gibraltar, July 27. Severe fighting has been reported near Gibraltar. It is indicated that a Government force, several hundreds, strong, has been completely annihilated during this afternoon's engagement near Lalinea. The rebels are believed to have lost sixty killed.

Lalinea reports that of the 300 Government supporters killed, most were Communists. Many prisoners were executed.

The Spanish loyal fleet is rushing from Tangier to Estepona to check General Franco's advance in the southern fighting sector.—Reuter.

CASUALTIES

Gibraltar, July 27. It is estimated that the casualties in a battle near Estepona are over 800 dead, including 400 Government fighters, and 1,200 wounded.—Reuter.

FRENCH PLANES FOR SPAIN

London, July 27. According to press reports, 50 airplanes arrived at Barcelona from France. One Spanish News Agency states that these are the first of 300 planes ordered from the French aircraft industry. It is further declared that 20 aircraft landed in Madrid.—Reuter.

TIN CONTROL PROBLEM

Siam's Demand For High Quota

AGREEMENT HOPES

London, July 28.

That yesterday's communique does not signify the end of tin restriction is the opinion of the majority of tin interests in London and Amsterdam, although much disappointment is expressed and the widespread liquidation seen is not yet exhausted.

Some quarters believe that an agreement will be eventually reached at 16,000 tons, but consider this represents a sufficient increase in tin production to appreciably depress prices. On the other hand the view is held of a recent stiffening of Malaya's attitude.

Other well-informed circles believe that the Committee will be prepared to let restriction lapse and engage in a trial of strength if Siam proves adamant.

The "Financial News" remarks that negotiations can hardly be renewed at some time even if both parties wish it. A period of uncertainty is therefore inevitable and the Committee should issue a statement setting out the policy it now intends to pursue.—Reuter.

SILVER MARKET

(From Our Own Correspondent).

London, July 28.

London Silver prices to-day were unchanged as follows:

REFORM OF THE LEAGUE

Britain To Give The Lead

COLLECTIVE PEACE SYSTEM

London, July 28.

After last night's foreign affairs debate, the Government obtained a majority of 313 votes to 138.

In replying on the debate, the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden referred to the question of the reform of the League. He said the Government would give the lead on this matter at the appropriate moment which would be after consultations with other members of the League. The British Government, he said, did not intend to propose any drastic amendment to the main structure of the Covenant.

Moreover, there were certain principles connected with collective organisation of peace which in the Government's view it was essential to maintain and to which the Covenant gave expression. The most important of all these principles was the prevention of war and that included a number of important elements of which he would mention four, namely, machinery for peaceful settlement of disputes, machinery for adjustment of grievances, creation of a deterrent to war, and establishment of an international agreement for reduction and limitation of armaments.

All these elements were indispensable to collective organisation of peace and the Government wished to see them all maintained in any modifications that might be made.

During the interim period that might be necessary for the examination of the subject, the Government would be prepared to take their part in any action which members of the League might collectively agree should be taken under the Covenant.—British Wireless.

ITALIAN ASSURANCES

Mr. Eden stated that Italy in the middle of the present month had approached Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey and assured these Governments that Italy was not contemplating aggressive action. Italy considered the sanctions chapter closed and looked forward to a new policy of co-operation with all nations, said the Foreign Secretary.

"I am therefore glad to declare that in the view of His Majesty's Government there is no further need for the continuation of the mutual assistance assurances in the Mediterranean," said Mr. Eden.

ROYAL EXCURSION

PEIPING EMBASSY TO REMAIN

London, July 27.

Speaking in the debate on Foreign Office estimates to-day, the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, told the House of Commons that ever since the reoccupation of the Rhineland by German troops, the British Government has striven to start negotiations to restore the situation.

Respecting the brief meeting of the three Locarno signatories, France, Belgium, and Britain, in London, Mr. Eden said this showed the Government's constructive objective had been realised. But he pointed out that this meeting was only a preliminary stage and that much diplomatic work would be necessary before a full, five-power meeting could take place.

The Government regarded the results of the Montreux Conference, which gave Turkey the right to rearm the Dardanelles, as extremely satisfactory. It had shown that more could be gained by legal methods in treaty revision than by repudiation.

ITALIAN ASSURANCES

Mr. Eden stated that Italy in the middle of the present month had approached Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey and assured these Governments that Italy was not contemplating aggressive action. Italy considered the sanctions chapter closed and looked forward to a new policy of co-operation with all nations, said the Foreign Secretary.

"I am therefore glad to declare that in the view of His Majesty's Government there is no further need for the continuation of the mutual assistance assurances in the Mediterranean," said Mr. Eden.

With regard to the reform of the League of Nations, Mr. Eden emphasised that the Government's objective was to widen and strengthen the basis of international collaboration but he declined to make a detailed statement, which, he said, would only prejudice the September meeting of the League.

RAW MATERIALS

He repeated again the Government's willingness to discuss at an international conference the question of giving foreign countries freer access to raw materials from British mandated territories and colonies.

Turning to the question of the transfer of mandated territories, the Foreign Secretary declared that the question affected all mandatory powers.

The Government had not consulted any of these in this matter, but as far as the Government was concerned the question would inevitably raise grave difficulties of a moral, political and legal nature, to which they had been unable to find any solution.

The Government hoped, he said, that with so many international questions unsolved there would be no desire in any quarter to introduce further causes for serious differences between nations.

EMBASSY IN CHINA

Replying to Mr. Robert Rankin, Mr. Eden said he was unable to state when it would be possible to move the whole of the staff of

London, July 28.

It was a pure coincidence and for entirely unrelated causes that King Edward and the Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, announced cancellation of their respective holiday plans within a few hours of one another. As already stated, the King's decision was the result of a desire not to add to the inevitable responsibilities and anxieties of the French authorities at a time when these are made sufficiently heavy by the civil war proceeding over their border and when many people are making their way uncontrolled over the frontier from Spain.

The decision was certainly a disappointment for the King and this feeling is fully shared by the French people particularly in the Riviera as French newspapers show. It is generally hoped that a visit will be possible at a more auspicious moment not too far distant.

The King's revised holiday plans are not yet known, but London newspapers suggest three possibilities may be under consideration—a cruise in the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, a visit to the West of England of which the King is known to be very fond, or an extended visit to Balmoral, Scotland.

The Prime Minister's cancellation of his usual visit to Aix les Bains is due to the fact that international problems will certainly require ministerial consideration during August. After the replies of Germany and Italy to the invitation to join in a five-power Locarno conference have been received, much careful preparation through diplomatic channels will be required. Moreover, great importance is attached by the Government to the Geneva discussions in September when the future of the League of Nations will be discussed.

Last year the Prime Minister returned from Aix les Bains during the holidays for a series of Cabinet councils. He now intends to go to Chequers when Parliament adjourns this week-end and will there remain in close touch with affairs. Practically all Ministers are remaining in England during the Parliamentary vacation as far as their plans are at present known.

POLO

At Hurlingham
INDIAN EMPIRE DAY

London, July 7.
India won the Indian Princes Challenge Shield at Hurlingham yesterday, when they beat a team with the grandiose title of The World by nine goals to seven. After the match the Duchess of Gloucester presented the trophy to the Maharajah of Jaipur and a small cup to each member of the winning side. There was a very large attendance of visitors, and the Members' Stand was almost uncomfortably full. The temporary stand on the other side of the ground was filled with school children, whose excitement was reflected in the roars of applause that went up every time The World scored a goal. Why The World should have been singled out for favouritism is difficult to explain. Perhaps because they were playing in the colours of the nearby Chelsea Football Club.

The World actually consisted of two brothers Ashton, from Australia, and two Americans in Mr. J. P. Mills and Mr. Winston Guest. The Maharajah of Jaipur, Rao Raja Hanut Singh, and two British Army in India officers, Captain H. C. Walford and Captain D. Dawnay, made up India's team. India well deserved their victory as, after being three goals down in the second chukker, they rallied splendidly and hit six goals in a row, much to the depression of the school children. The winners all played well, although the Maharajah of Jaipur took some time to get going, and Captain Walford and Hanut Singh were in particularly good form. Mr. R. R. Ashton, received a nasty blow in the face during the third period, but pluckily resumed after receiving attention in the dressing room.

INDIA LOSE THE LEAD

India opened the scoring with a goal by Hanut Singh near the end of the first chukker, but they soon lost the lead when play was begun again. First Mr. Mills equalized with a fine lofted drive and then made a run from the throw-in that enabled Mr. Guest to put The World ahead. Mr. Guest quickly hit two more goals, one after a clever dribble from the boards and the other when the Maharajah of Jaipur was slow in clearing a hit up by Mr. R. R. Ashton. India pulled themselves together and Captain Walford got a goal back from a well-judged backhand centre from Hanut Singh just before the second bell. Captain Walford hit through again early in the third chukker, following a run by Captain Dawnay and short-ly afterwards picked Mr. Guest's pocket and galloped off for a fourth and equalizing goal.

Keeping up the attack in the fourth period India took the lead again when Mr. Guest crossed Hanut Singh in front of goal and the umpires awarded a penalty goal—Hanut Singh put the ball through in any case, but a second after the whistle had been blown—and a fine drive by Captain Walford made them two up. Captain Dawnay, who had been kept rather quiet by Mr. Guest, then put in a brilliant run and scored with a grand lofted cross-drive, and The World, from being three up, found themselves three down. They soon reduced the deficit to one, however, Mr. Guest hitting through after a run from half-way, and Mr. P. S. K. Ashton turning in a fine backhand centre from the boards by his brother. India quickly got going again and Hanut Singh scored a neat goal, but Mr. P. S. K. Ashton got it back from a hit up by Mr. Guest, who was unlucky enough to hit the wrong side of the goal-post a minute later.

Captain Dawnay went away from a pass by Hanut Singh just before the end of the fifth chukker, and although he was ridden off by Mr. Guest, Captain Walford was following up and hit through easily. There was no scoring in the final period, during which India had rather the better of the play and never looked like losing their advantage.

The teams were:—
India.—Captain H. C. Walford. No. 1: Captain D. Dawnay. No. 2: Rao Raja Hanut Singh. No. 3: and the Maharajah of Jaipur, back.
The World.—Mr. P. S. K. Ashton. No. 1: Mr. J. P. Mills. No. 2: Mr. Winston Guest. No. 3: and Mr. R. R. Ashton, back.

In a match played later on the second ground, the 1st Royal Dragoons, who received a start of 44 goals on handicap, beat the Optimists by 111 goals to eight.

LADIES AT GOLF

SCOTLAND BEATS ENGLAND

London, July 10.
After one of the most exciting matches ever seen here Miss Jessie Anderson beat Miss Pam Barton at the 37th hole in the final round of the French Open Ladies' Championship to-day.

The players were so evenly matched that they were all square at the ninth, 13th, and 27th holes, and there was never more than a hole between them until the 32nd, where Miss' Anderson became two up. The next two holes were halved, and Miss Anderson was two up with two to play, but Miss Barton, profiting by her opponent's mistakes, squared at the 36th hole.

Weather conditions were terrible for the first 12 holes, rain falling in torrents. At the second hole Miss Barton hit a lovely iron fully 200 yards, the ball running on to the green, but she took three putts. Miss Barton was one up at the third, her opponent being out of bounds, but the latter squared at the fifth, where Miss Barton was in the rough under a tree and took two to get out. After halving the sixth Miss Anderson became one up at the 530-yards seventh, which she won in 5. Miss Barton was twice bunkered and took 6. Miss Barton was stymied at the eighth and had to be content with a half, but she won the ninth in a par 4, just failing to hole a 25-foot putt for a 3. The match was all square.

Miss Anderson holed a ten-footer to become one up at the tenth. But both missed from 4ft. at the 11th and halved a par five hole in six. After the 12th had been halved in four, the sun broke through, and the course began to dry quickly. The break in the weather proved a lucky omen for Miss Barton, who squared at the 13th, her opponent taking three putts. The next three holes were halved. Miss Anderson regained the lead once again at the 17th where, although in the rough with her second, she chipped to within 2ft. of the pin and had a four to Miss Barton's five. A pulled drive put Miss Anderson into the rough at the 18th and lost her the hole.

BETTER CONDITIONS

The warm sun during the interval dried up the greens, and the second round was begun in glorious weather. Among those who watched the play were Sir George Clerk, the British Ambassador, and Mme. Rene Lacoste, the holder, whom Miss Anderson had beaten. Miss Anderson again started by winning the first. Miss Barton recovered well from the rough, and chipped to within 4ft. of the hole, but missed the putt. Miss Anderson was fortunate to halve the second where she got into a water-logged bunker. It was playable, however, and she backed it out splendidly. Three more holes were halved before Miss Barton squared at the sixth hole, where she holed a 12ft. putt from just off the green for a 2. Miss Barton took the lead by winning the next in a par 5. Miss Anderson going out of bounds and taking 7. The eighth was halved, and with Miss Barton taking three putts at the next, her opponent won the hole to be all square with nine to play.

By hoing a 12-footer for a 4 at the 11th Miss Anderson again took the lead. The wind, which had been slight all day, then strengthened and became distinctly trying. Miss Anderson increased her lead at the 14th, where Miss Barton drove into the rough, and by halving the next two she became two up. Her drive to the 35th hole of the match found a bad lie in the rough, and Miss Barton, keeping her's straight, won the hole in a par 4. Miss Anderson was again in the rough with her tee shot at the 36th, and she failed to get out with her second. She chipped to within five yards of the pin, but missed a putt that would have given her the match.

A crooked drive at the 37th (436 yards) probably lost Miss Barton the match. She was well off the course with her second, and after a search in which the spectators joined the ball was found embedded in a muddy bunker, and eventually she picked it up. It was a sad end to a good match.

The teams were:—
1st Royal Dragoons.—Captain C. E. D. Cooper. No. 1: Mr. E. A. Calvert. No. 2: Mr. R. Heathcoat-Amory. No. 3: and the Hon. J. Hamilton-Russell, back.
Optimists.—Captain H. G. Cowdell. No. 1: Mr. D. J. Frost. No. 2: Mr. E. H. Hughes. No. 3: and Mr. W. L. Horbury, back.

LAWN BOWLS MEETING

Sub-Committee For Interport

PLAYERS TO SAIL IN SEPTEMBER

At a general committee meeting of the Hong Kong Lawn Bowls Association held yesterday, the following were elected to serve on the Interport Sub-Committee: Messrs J. H. Russell, J. V. Ramsay, G. H. Sherriff, E. el Arculli, and S. Deacon.

Mr. C. J. Tacchi, President of the Lawn Bowls Association was in the chair, supported by Mr. C. B. Hoskin (Hon. Secretary). Mr. Hoskin read correspondence between Hong Kong and Shanghai, in which the latter port stressed the necessity of sending a team early in September.

It was decided unanimously following discussion, that the Hong Kong Interport team will leave this port by the Empress of Asia on September 4, arriving in Shanghai on September 6 (Sunday).

The following names have been submitted by their respective clubs for nomination in the Interport team. It selected: Club de Recreo (F. E. B. Ribeiro and F. X. M. Silva), Kowloon Cricket Club (A. Hyde-Lay), Kowloon Bowling Green Club (H. H. Rose), Craigengower Cricket Club (C. S. Rosselett, J. S. Randle, D. Rumsdell, and W. Ward), Civil Service Cricket Club (P. E. Knight and J. F. MacGowan), Police Recreation Club (L. Glendenning and W. Dall).

It was decided to allow a substitution to N. J. Bebbington in the Rink Competition as he has undergone an operation for appendicitis and will not be able to play.

An application by Mr. Silva for postponement of a Pairs Competition game in which he and J. Noronha are scheduled to meet J. E. Henson and S. A. Bright today until next Wednesday was allowed.

The following attended the meeting: A. O. Madar (I.R.C.), F. J. Lunny (H.K.E.), P. E. Knight (C.S.C.C.), J. S. Riddell (P.R.C.), H. Gvery (K.C.C.), F. X. M. Silva (Club de Recreo), G. Sherriff (K.B.C.C.), J. V. Ramsay (Kowloon Dock R.C.), E. el Arculli (C.C.C.) and J. Russell (H.K.F.C.).

BLUNT OARS MAY CHANGE ROWING

London, July 4.

All the talk at Henley yesterday was about the oars used by the defeated Japanese crew.

Oars of the Japanese type may possibly be used in a future Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race.

Mr. W. G. R. M. Laurie, who stroked Cambridge last year, has written to the Japanese Embassy asking to be put in touch with the makers of the oars used by the Japanese crew.

"The oars we use are very light, as we are a very light crew, Dr. Seta, the Japanese coach, said yesterday.

UNDAUNTED

"The edge of the English oar which enters the water is pointed, but the edge of our oars is blunt and square. We believe that this makes for much greater power."

The Japanese are undaunted after their spectacular six lengths defeat by the Zurich crew in the semi-finals of the Grand Challenge Cup, yesterday.

"We are confident that in, say, four years' time we shall have a crew that will beat a European one," Dr. Seta told the "Daily Mirror."

PLANE CRASH IN GERMANY

Berlin, July 27.

A new type of aeroplane of the Heinkel Works, whilst being demonstrated to Colonel Lindbergh crashed in the air, the pilot, the famous Colonel Udet, and the Chief of the Technical Staff in the Air Ministry, saving themselves by jumping off. Colonel Lindbergh had just inspected the Heinkel Works at Warnemuende, and different types of planes were being demonstrated to him, when the accident occurred. The cause of the crash has not yet been ascertained. Colonel Udet suffered slight abrasions, and a sprained leg, but will be able to resume his duties within a week.

ASSAULT ON TAXI-DRIVER RECALLED

Riflemen Before Court

A vivid description of a dastardly assault on a Chinese taxi-driver by three Riflemen of the Royal Ulster Rifles, was given by Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Crown Solicitor at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday where committal proceedings were commenced before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen.

The assault, said Mr. Williams, occurred at about 2.20 a.m. on July 6 on the Castle Peak Road between the 5 and 6 miles stones. The taxi-driver was badly smashed up and received a severe bruise on the left side of his face. His left eye was closed. Just before the driver lost consciousness he had the sense to remove the ignition key which was placed in his mouth under his tongue. When he regained consciousness, the driver found himself bound and gagged some five yards down the embankment from the roadway.

The men accused of the affair were: Riflemen Thomas O'Connell, Riflemen Sydney Brown, and Riflemen Thomas Parks. They stood charged with assaulting Leung Yau, driver of taxi No. 766 and robbing him of $11.00 in money, an electric torch, a police whistle and a watch, valued in all at $21.

Prior to Mr. Williams opening the case for the Crown, the Magistrate requested the Court Sergeant to obtain chairs for the defendants to be seated in the prisoners' box. Detective Sergeant C. H. Goodwin appeared for the police.

THE CASE.

Opening the case for the Crown, the Assistant Crown Solicitor said that he would endeavour to trace defendants' movements from about 10 p.m. on July 5 leading to their subsequent arrest the next day. The three men were seen by Riflemen Gregory at 10 a.m. on the verandah of Victoria Barracks and he would give evidence that their beds were not slept in that night.

At 1.25 a.m. a taxi-driver at the stand opposite the Star Ferry saw three men dressed in "dark" civilian clothing standing at the corner of Canton Road and Salisbury Road. The tallest of the three, who was carrying a suitcase, called him and when he drove up, the driver was asked if they could be taken to a cheap Chinese hotel.

They were driven to Nathan Hotel, where a fight came out and a conversation ensued. The men were informed that the price was $4 for a room. They had not alighted from the taxi, and the driver was then asked to convey them to the Jordan Road Ferry. The driver was further questioned by his passengers and as he did not understand what they were saying he took them to the taxi-cab company. There he was instructed to drive them to Mongkok Ferry, where they eventually alighted from his cab.

The next link in the story occurred at about 1.45 a.m. when Leung Yau (complainant) driving along Nathan Road saw three men standing near a bus stop in the vicinity of the Mongkok Fire Station. He approached them and a conversation ensued. This witness, added the Assistant Crown Solicitor would testify that he thought the men were perfectly sober. Other witnesses for the Crown, would also testify that the men were not drunk.

DIRECTIONS ALTERED

The tallest of the three asked to be driven to Stonecutters, and when complainant remonstrated that it was impossible to drive there his objections were waved aside by one of the others. The taxi was driven to Lanchukok, where the complainant thought the men would hire a sampan to cross to Stonecutters' Island.

When near the Lanchukok Prison and at a junction of Castle Peak Road and a street leading to E.O.C.O.N.Y. property, he asked the men where they wished to go. They pointed to Castle Peak Road and were then driven past the prison.

Between the 5 and 6 miles stones, the taxi was stopped and the tall passenger said that they wished to go to Fanling. The taxi-metre read $1.25. The three men alighted and had a discussion. The tallest then returned and without warning struck the driver from the left hand side. The latter extracted his whistle and attempted to raise an alarm. The other two men set on him from the other side, one of whom snatched the whistle from the driver and broke its chain.

Before the driver lost consciousness, he had the sense to place the ignition key in his mouth. When he regained consciousness he found himself bound and gagged about five yards down the embankment. He managed to loosen his bonds and on wishing to ascertain the time discovered that his watch and money were missing. At about 3.25 a.m. he made his way to Lanchukok Prison where he telephoned the police.

MEN NOTICED

In the meantime an Indian warden on duty at the prison saw a taxi being driven past returning to town. At the bottom of the incline, he saw three men dressed in civilian clothing alight from the taxi and proceed towards Shamshulpo. In a hurry. From their movements, the warden deduced that the men were police officers engaged in search work.

A witness, said Mr. Williams, would be called who saw three civilians one of whom carried a suitcase, obtained three rickshas in Shamshulpo, and drove off towards the old Yau-mat ferry wharf. There they aroused a motor boat man who will testify that they were dressed in dark clothes. He noticed that none of the men wore ties, and this might be explained, stated the Assistant Crown Solicitor by the fact that the men had killed them as bonds. On the way across the harbour, an electric torch was flashed on the engine by one of the accused.

MILITARY POLICE ATTACKED

Early that morning a Military Policeman saw the accused at the foot of 7/8 Penny Hill, hesitating about their next movement. The tallest was carrying a suitcase. He approached them and in answer to a question, second accused, replied that "they were fed up." They proceeded to walk when without warning, second accused struck at the military policeman. The latter blew his whistle and Riflemen Bush came to his assistance. One of the accused complained of a hurt hand and an examination revealed that it was swollen. They were placed under arrest and the contents of the bag was examined. On second accused was found an electric torch and a police whistle.

Following complainant's report at the Police Station, Detective Sergeant C. H. Goodwin accompanied complainant to the scene of the assault where he saw blood stains on the roadway and found a piece of waste which the complainant asserted had been used as a gag. This was also blood-stained.

Detective Sergeant Goodwin later went to the military authorities and took the three men under arrest. At the station in answer to the charge, first defendant said "I have nothing to say."

Second accused said "As regards the $11.00 I have nothing to say. The watch was thrown away before we started and the whistle was found in my suitcase."

Third defendant stated "I have nothing to say. That's all." In view of the second defendant's statement, Det. Sergt. Goodwin revisited the scene to look for the watch. He could only find the celluloid case in which it was kept. At an identification parade held subsequently, first accused was identified by the complainant. He failed to identify the other two. Other witnesses failed to identify any of the accused.

Following corroborative evidence, the case was remanded.

Kowloon Resident's Complaint

ASSOCIATION'S VIEWS

A special meeting of the General Committee of the Kowloon Residents' Association took place on Monday evening in St. Andrew's Church Hall.

Those present were: Mr. B. Wyllie (President), Mr. F. C. Mow Fung (Vice-President), Mr. R. Baldwin (Hon. Secretary), Mrs. E. W. Gardiner, Rev. J. R. Higgs, Messrs. L. d'Almada e Castro, Jnr., T. B. Wilson, W. C. Felslow, F. H. Loeby, C. E. Terry, H. Gittins, A. Cheung, J. M. Alves, R. Pestonji and Dr. Ip Kam Wah. An apology for absence was received from Mr. Li Chor Chi.

The President welcomed the new members of the Committee and spoke briefly on the work of the Association.

A letter from a member was read, drawing the attention of the Association to the unpruned condition of bushes and trees in gardens overhanging the footpaths at Kowloon Tong. After discussion it was agreed to give publicity to this nuisance in the hope that those responsible would take steps to remedy it. Failing an abatement, the Association would bring the matter to the attention of the appropriate authority.

SUB-COMMITTEES

The following Sub-Committees were appointed:

Correspondence: The President, Vice-President and Hon. Secretary (ex-officio).

Children's Playgrounds: Messrs. F. H. Loeby, A. Cheung and Mrs. E. W. Gardiner.

Street Lighting: Messrs. T. B. Wilson, Lam Ming Fan and I. N. Murray.

Markets and Sanitation: Messrs. F. C. Mow Fung, C. E. Terry and Dr. Ip Kam Wah.

Kowloon Historic Sites: Messrs. F. C. Mow Fung, I. N. Murray, Lam Ming Fan and W. C. Felslow.

Bus Services: Messrs. H. Gittins, J. M. Alves and Rev. J. R. Higgs.

Representative on R.S.P.C.A.: Mr. R. Pestonji.

Representative on Playing Grounds Committee: Mr. Li Chor Chi.

Representative on N.T. Agricultural Association: Mr. Lam Ming Fan.

Representative on Board of Education: Rev. J. R. Higgs.

It was decided that measures be taken to draw the attention of newcomers in Kowloon to the existence of the Association and a sub-committee was appointed to make suggestions in this connection.

Arising out of the minutes of the previous meeting the Sanitation Sub-Committee was asked to report on the matter of inadequate surface drainage in the Carpenter Road area.

Reference was also made to the practice of the China Light and Power Company levying deposits from consumers. It was decided to make the necessary enquiries and to bring the matter up again for discussion at the next meeting of the Committee.

LOCAL PROBATES

Letters of administration were granted to the widow, Mrs. Laura Snowden, of Albert Washington Snowden, who passed away on July 9, 1935, at his residence at Ryvangsalle 26, Copenhagen, Denmark.

The deceased was a retired gentleman, and his estate was valued at $11,800 (H.K.).

A probate of will was granted in the death of Chung Chow Lai, alias Chung Chik Hing Tong, retired Chinese official, to Chung Cheung Shi and Chung Chan Shi, widow and concubine, respectively; the estate being valued at $20,000 (H.K.).

A probate of will was granted to Li Chung Shi, the widow of Li San Cho, alias Li San alias Li Hin Cheung, a merchant, to the value of $11,200.

THE PILGRIMAGE TO VIMY RIDGE

The Last And The Greatest

DESTROYER AS CONVOY

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 14. General Ross, who for the last two years has been engaged in organising the Canadian pilgrimage to Vimy Ridge and the battlefields associated with the Canadian Legion, arrived in London on July 11.

The pilgrims this year will number over 8,000-8,200, ex-members of the Canadian forces, widows, parents, and relatives of Canadians who fell in the war, and they will be joined by between 1,700 and 2,000 other Canadians living in England. The bulk of those coming from Canada will sail in transports from Montreal on Thursday and Friday. They come from all parts of Canada, a large number from the extreme west. More than a hundred are Canadian veterans resident in the United States.

The chief event of the pilgrimage will be the unveiling of the last and greatest Canadian war memorial at Vimy Ridge, while at Valenciennes—captured by a Canadian division on November 1, 1918—the street L'Avenue Sergeant Cairns is being dedicated to Sergeant Harry Cairns, V.C., of Saskatoon, who was killed there. It is the first time that a town has dedicated one of its streets to a soldier who had served in the ranks.

The Canadian Government has decided that the destroyer Saguenay shall convoy the pilgrim ships from Montreal. They will proceed direct to Havre and Antwerp, and after the pilgrimage the party will be brought in the same ships to London on July 28. General Ross said that it was hoped General Sir Richard Turner, V.C., who was G.O.C. of the Second Division of the Canadians in England, would lead the 8,000 pilgrims at Vimy.

The pilgrims will be officially in London until July 31. On July 28 they will attend a garden party held by the King at Buckingham Palace. The same day Mr. Baldwin will receive them on behalf of the British Government, at Westminster Hall, and afterwards they will march to the Cenotaph to lay a wreath. Delegations of the pilgrims are visiting Dryburgh Abbey to lay a wreath on the tomb of Lord Haig, and like tributes will be paid to the memory of Lord Byng at Thorpe-le-Soken and to Lord Jellicoe at St. Paul's Cathedral.

LEAVES OF A BIBLE MANUSCRIPT

OFFER TO BRITISH MUSEUM

London, July 9.

Sir Frederic Kenyon, presiding at the annual meeting of the Friends of the National Libraries held in the rooms of the British Academy, Burlington Gardens, yesterday, said that though the society had continued to assist libraries throughout the country, there had been no special appeal during the year except for the acquisition of the important scientific archives of T. H. Huxley on behalf of the Imperial College of Science. The result of that appeal was still uncertain, and further contributions would be welcomed.

It was essential that the British Museum, acknowledged to have the finest library in the world, should continue to add to its collections. It was no new thing for the British Museum to depend on benefactors, half of the collections in the Museum being the results of gifts. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had granted a concession under which gifts made to the Friends of the National Libraries would be exempted from Death Duties in future.

Sir Frederic Kenyon mentioned that among new acquisitions that the committee wished to make were two first editions of a work by the celebrated French surgeon Ambrose Pare, and 11 leaves of an extremely valuable Bible manuscript of great historical interest.

PHILIPPINE MINING NEWS

Good Progress In The Soriano Masbate Mines

(Through the courtesy of Messrs. G.A. Harriman & Co.)

Good progress in construction work, mine development, and in milling was reported for the month of June from two of the three Soriano-operated properties in the Masbate district, Masbate Consolidated and I. X. L. The reports of A. A. Friedman, general superintendent of Masbate Consolidated, and N. A. Fittinghoff, acting general superintendent of I. X. L., were released this week by the Manila office of the two concerns. Heavy rains were reported in the district during the latter part of June but operations did not suffer particularly.

MASBATE CONSOLIDATED

Of the 38,055 tons delivered from the mine, 71 per cent came from underground, 23 per cent from various open cuts, and 6 per cent from development headings. A total of 1,432 tons of ore were sent to the mill from the 6 level development works at Panique, and averaged $3.56 a ton (old price of gold).

Five feet of ore were cut in the 202 crosscut in the Colorado mine, of which three feet assayed $10.35. Development in all sections of Masbate Consolidated's property was in general favourable.

Milling was handicapped somewhat by undercapacity in filtering, but this was remedied late in June when the Butters Filter No. 2 was placed in operation. Heavy rains slowed up ore deliveries somewhat due to sticky ore encountered in some of the level chutes, but steps have been taken to remedy this difficulty.

A large restaurant, with a capacity of 250 patrons, was completed and will be placed in operation this month. This will fill a need for boarding the increased labour force of the company, and should improve the efficiency of the labour, as well as attract a better class of men.

The entire power plant, switchboard, fuel and lubricating oil filters were completed, and 4,400 h. p. are now available for power. Total power costs before amortization and depreciation have been under P.01 per k. w. h.

I X L OPERATIONS

Development for the month totalled 861 feet, with good results. Stopes in general are in good condition and are well prepared for the rainy season.

Stopping activities were concentrated on the Baleta Southwest and Betel Nut sections. Mill extraction showed a marked improvement during the month. The mill extension is well under way and excavation for retaining walls is about completed. Work is now going forward on pouring the concrete retaining wall between the machine shop and thickener floor.

Five new barrio cottages have been completed, and are being occupied. The first 320 horsepower generating unit is now being overhauled and re-erected. Repair on the power house is finished except for the pouring of the new base and the addition of pillars. As soon as the wall has been checked for exact alignment by transit concrete reinforcement will be poured.
